Secret History Of The Atomic Bomb

Truth You Never Learned In School

6/30/98 EUSTACE MULLINS

The world was stunned to learn that India has now tested nuclear weapons. For many years, all nations have been concerned about the proliferation of atomic explosives. Even in their distress, no one seems to be interested in the historic or the psychological record of why these weapons were developed, and what special breed of mankind devoted themselves to this diabolical goal.

Despite the lack of public interest, the record is clear, and easily available to anyone who is interested. My interest in this subject, dormant for many years, was suddenly rekindled during my annual lecture tour in Japan. My hosts had taken me to the city of Nagasaki for the first time. Without telling me their plans, they entered the Nagasaki Atomic Bomb Museum. I thought it would be an interesting experience, but, to my surprise, when I walked into the exhibition rooms, I was suddenly overcome by sadness. Realizing that I was about to burst into tears, I moved away from my companions and stood, biting my lip. Even so, it seemed impossible to control myself. I was surrounded

INTELLIGENCE SCANDAL

Excerpted from THE SPOTLIGHT, 7/13/98: [quoting]

...But Manbar became the central figure in one of the decade's worst secret service scandals not just as a prosperous "merchant of death". The real importance of this case is in the long statement Manbar made to U.S. intelligence agents who entrapped, interrogated and then released him in Paris, France, in late 1993, these sources related.

In the statement, Manbar admitted selling "dozens of truckloads" of doomsday armaments to Ali Abasbur, a high Islamic official reportedly in charge of Iran's chemical warfare projects.

But this sort of commerce was "commonplace" in Israel, Manbar explained. "If I'm guilty of violating some sort of ban on selling Iran such weapons, so are 200 other Israeli businessmen," Manbar told his American interrogators.

Even more importantly, the Israeli government—specifically, the agency known as Shin Beth, or General Security Services—had full knowledge of the clandestine arms sales to Iran and "encouraged them both as a source of hard currency and as a source of intelligence on the Islamic republic's order of battle," Manbar averred.... YOUR TAX DOLLARS AT WORK IN MIDEAST

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 7/13/98: [quoting] The Times of London is reporting that Israel is planning preemptive strikes against Iran using long-range aircraft just received from the United States.

Stories in The Times during the first week of July were based on an "annual conflict analysis" published by Jane's Information Group, which predicted "a limited preemptive strike" against Iran. Seeming to confirm Jane's report was the surprise announcement by Israel's Air Force magazine that the first of its new F151 long-range strike aircraft are operational, according to The Times.

Israel received the first two of the $84 million F151 aircraft made by the U.S. in January and, according to The Times, "the $2.5 billion order for 25 of the world's most advanced fighters, plus spare parts, is due to be completed by the end of the year."

It has been estimated that Israel has 100-plus nuclear weapons, with some estimates running as high as 400 warheads. Also, "Israel has produced ballistic missiles, against which its potential enemies have no defense," according to The Times.

Jane's points out that back in 1981, Israel bombed Iraq's Osirak nuclear research facility near Baghdad in a preemptive strike using U.S.-

made warplanes "and direct U.S. assistance", according to ex-Rep. Paul Findley. [End quoting]

I'll leave it to you to decide what kind of games the elite are playing—but it looks like we're in for a hot season having to do with far more than the weather as the elite's tempers flare!!

US TOLD TO CURB CONGRESS

Excerpted from the INTERNET, 7/15/98: [quoting]

BEIJING: China demanded, on Tuesday, the Clinton administration take steps to rein in the US Congress to put a stop to resolutions it sees as hostile.

The Foreign Ministry was reacting to Senate votes that reaffirmed US commitments toward Taiwan and supported the island's entry into the World Bank and International Monetary Fund. [End quoting]

Do you get that? China DEMANDED! Looks like the power leaders of this planet are playing a game of "chicken"—so watch out!!

They probably have enough blackmail over him that they can have Clinton in prison for the rest of his life. But—they couldn't afford to let him live because he has the goods on everyone else.

SENATOR REVEALS FBI MEMO ON RENO

From THE DAILY NEWS, Los Angeles, 7/16/98: [quoting]

FBI Director Louis Freeh forcefully warned Attorney General Janet Reno that she was misreading the law by not seeking an independent counsel to investigate campaign fund raising by the Clinton administration, Sen. Fred Thompson told a Senate committee Wednesday.

"It is difficult to imagine a more compelling situation for appointing an independent counsel," Freeh wrote in a memorandum, Thompson said. The Republican Tennessee senator said he was briefed on the memo in June by a senior FBI official.

With Reno appearing as a witness before the Senate Judiciary Committee on Wednesday, Thompson and others used the disagreement between her and Freeh to press again for an outside investigation of campaign finance practices involving White House officials.

Although Freeh's rift with Reno over the appointment of a special prosecutor had been publicly disclosed last winter, Thompson angered Reno on Wednesday by confronting her with specific language and details from Freeh's memo that had not been publicly released. The Justice Department had repeatedly rebuffed requests by Congress to release Freeh's memo, even going so far as to defy a subpoena issued by a House committee investigating campaign finance.

Freeh's 22-page memorandum was written in November 1997. Thompson, who was chairman of the Senate panel that had investigated campaign finance abuses, characterized Freeh's memo as a broad-based and unforgiving critique of the attorney general's interpretation of the independent counsel law. The statute is designed to avoid the appearance of a conflict of interest when an attorney general may have to investigate matters relating to the president who appointed her or him.

Freeh, the senator said, "pointed out that their investigation, the FBI's investigation, had led them to the highest levels of the White House, including the vice president and the president, and therefore the Department of Justice must look at the Independent Counsel Statute."

He added that FBI officials told him that Freeh's memo also described Reno's decision not to seek an independent counsel as starkly inconsistent with her actions in seeking to have independent counsels named in other investigations.

At the hearing Wednesday, Reno told Thompson that he was wrong to reveal the contents of the memorandum. "Our understanding was that the briefing was supposed to be confidential," said Reno, with a measure of anger.

Thompson said he was briefed June 19 by FBI general counsel Larry Parkinson and there had been no admonition to keep it private. [End quoting]

It looks like they're heating up the fire under the Clinton gangsters.

If Janet Reno was so innocent, why is she so hot because the memo got out?? Her reactions sound like guilt and cover-up to me.

MOBILE PHONE SCARE

From the INTERNET, 6/26/98: [quoting]

Mobile phones, an essential accessory for millions of business people and trendy techies, can significantly increase blood pressure, German researchers say. In a letter to be published in Friday's edition of The Lancet medical journal, Dr. Stephan Braune of the University Neurology Clinic in Freiburg, Germany, said radio-frequency electromagnetic fields (EMF) emitted by the telephones pumped up the blood pressure of 10 young volunteers who took part in a study.

Braune and his team attached the phones to the right side of the Volunteers' heads and switched them on by remote control at various intervals. They measured their heart function and blood pressure while they were standing and lying down. There was no sound so the volunteers did not know when they were exposed to the EMF. The researchers found that 35 minutes of radiofrequency EMF caused increases in resting blood pressure between five and 10 mm.

The finding could have adverse effects on people suffering from high blood pressure or hypertension, an important risk factor for heart disease and stroke which are leading causes of death in most developed countries. The researchers said the increase in blood pressure probably resulted from constriction of the arteries by the radio-frequency electromagnetic fields.

Cellular telephones have been linked to a variety of health problems ranging from fatigue, headaches and burning skin, to brain tumors, but there is still no proof [sure!] that the devices pose any serious health risks. [End quoting]

MERCHANTS OF DEATH UNTOUCHABLE

Washington complains; told to drop dead

Excerpted from THE SPOTLIGHT, by Warren Hough, 7/13/98: [quoting]

On secure telephone lines, behind a curtain of tense secrecy, U.S. Secretary of Defense William Cohen and his Israeli counterpart, Gen. Yitzhak Mordechai, have been engaged in a furious altercation over the minstate's blackmarket sales of U.S.-designed nuclear weapons components and other high-tech military equipment to India. That's what The SPOTLIGHT has learned exclusively from diplomatic sources in Washington and at UN headquarters in New York City.

Under a series of secret bilateral agreements, known as Memorandum of Understanding (MoU), Israel has managed to get, borrow, copy and steal a larger share of advanced American defense technology since 1980 than any other nation. The back-room giveaways of designs and products that cost U.S. taxpayers billions continued for decades, despite intelligence reports documenting the minstate's brazen violation of the ban against revealing or re-selling these lethal logistics.

But last month, when a sudden burst of nuclear bomb tests by Pakistan and India shook the world, raising once again the threat of global nuclear apocalypse, the CIA unexpectedly abandoned its long practice of covering up for the misdeeds of the Mossad, the minstate's secret service, these sources have recounted.

In a regional National Intelligence Estimate (NIE), the CIA bluntly told the White House that it was "extensive" Israeli black market sales of U.S. defense technology that had enabled both Pakistan and India to develop atomic armaments, and thus to set the stage for a doomsday standoff between two poor, volatile and bitterly feuding nations.

American national security officials have long known—although they have never had the courage to tell the public—that over the years Israel has illegally sold communist China military products and designs obtained from the U.S. worth well over $10 billion.

Pakistan's nuclear weapons capability is in part "derived from U.S.-originated technology China obtained from Israel and then re-exported to Pakistan", confirmed a recent report by the Stockholm International Peace Research Institute the prestigious European think tank. [End quoting]

Oh, the games these elite play for power and greed.

BANKING "ROBUST"

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 7/13/98: [quoting]

A late June news release by Veribanc, Inc., a banking industry watchdog, sports a rosy headline, but the content tells another story. Banks in Texas, Illinois, California and five other states are "experiencing new or increasing economic weakness". One dollar in every 20 of credit card debt is now written off, a doubling in three and a half years. Banks with outstanding Asian loans are having more delinquencies. [End quoting]

Talk about blatant propaganda—a positive headline with a negative text.

AIR SPACE

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 7/13/98: [quoting]

The Clinton administration has agreed to allow Cuban jetliners to fly over American air space. According to the State Department. Cuba's complaint to International Civil Aviation Organization, a UN agency, was about to be ruled in Cuba's favor. Cuban planes will fly over parts of Georgia, the Carolinas, Tennessee, Kentucky, West Virginia, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York. The Federal Aviation Administration says the routing "avoids any sensitive military sites". [End quoting]

Doesn't it feel good allowing Fidel—who supposedly has missiles aimed at our country—to have his planes flying over our houses?? What are the politicians up to?

OUTLAWS AT THE TOP

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 7/13/98: [quoting]

In recent congressional hearings the inspector general for the CIA testified that "there has existed a secret agreement between CIA and the Justice Department wherein during the years 1982 to 1995, the CIA did not have to report the drug trafficking by its assets to the Justice Department." Ex-DEA agent Mike Levine wrote, "This literally means that the CIA had been granted a license to obstruct justice in our so-called war on drugs at a time when Americans paid almost $150 billion in taxes to 'fight' drugs." [End quoting]

The elite have always been using the taxpayers' money to fight drugs to fill their own pockets. Occasionally they have a need to close in on their competitors, so they put on a big show for us honest citizens by making a big arrest.

PRESIDENT TO PUSH FOR FOOD SAFETY

Seeks More Money, and Power to
Tighten Import Controls

Excerpted from THE NEW YORK TIMES, 7/3/98: [quoting]

President Clinton plans to press Congress today to provide all $101 million he has sought to insure the safety of the nation's food supply. But Congress seems unlikely to cooperate.

Mr. Clinton also plans to announce two steps the Administration can take without Congressional authority to protect food safety, Administration officials said.

According to an advance text of his Saturday radio address, the President will also ask Congress to give the Food and Drug Administration "greater authority to halt imports of fruits, vegetables and other food products that are produced under safety conditions that do not match our own strict standards" and to give the Department of Agriculture "new authority to impose tough fines on businesses who violate those standards and to issue mandatory recall of unsafe meat and poultry".

The Government has no reliable tracking system, but health officials say food-borne diseases account for up to 30 million cases of illness and 9,000 deaths a year. There have been many large outbreaks of food-borne illness in the last year, including one just last week that made a New York woman ill and resulted in the recall of 172,000 pounds of ground-beef patties contaminated with the potentially deadly bacteria E. coli 0157:H7. [End quoting]

The elite are planting bacteria and viruses, and also, once a company is having financial problems from a big recall, they can buy it up for cents on the dollar.

They also gain for their depopulation plans by destroying more of our food and outright death from disease.

FORFEITURE LAWS PERMIT GOVERNMENT THIEVERY

Excerpted from THE FREE PRESS, Vol. 5, No. 3, by M. Pietrantonio, 4/24/98: [quoting]

We have all been taught that one of the most basic and cherished foundations of American law is that you are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law. That you may not be imprisoned, fined, or in any other manner punished until after you have been accorded due process and been found guilty by a jury or a judge. If you believe this to be the case, consider the following.

In October of 1990 Steven Zaferis of Liberty Mound, Oklahoma was in his truck returning home from a fishing trip he had taken to Michigan. He was stopped by an Oklahoma State Trooper for speeding. As he opened his wallet to give the trooper his license the trooper noticed that Zaferis had a large amount of cash, ($7000 in $50 and $100 bills) in his wallet. The trooper looked at Zaferis who was dressed in jeans, plaid shirt, and construction boots, and at his truck, a work truck with the name of Zaferis' tree cutting company, the "Rough Cut Tree Service" stenciled on the side, and said to Zaferis: "You don't look like a fellow who'd have $7000," whereupon the trooper then seized the money on the suspicion that it was "drug money" but did not arrest Zaferis. Zaferis protested to the trooper that he was carrying the money in case he saw a piece of equipment for his business that he wanted to buy during his fishing trip. He asked the trooper to call his bank in his home town to verify his account and status. He showed the trooper his Michigan fishing license, and even the fish he had caught, in an effort to prove that his story was true. All to no avail. The trooper informed Zaferis that he was seizing the money under federal asset forfeiture laws and that the money would be turned over to the Drug Enforcement Administration, DEA. Zaferis was informed that under these laws law enforcement officers can, in effect, arrest the property of an individual without ever having to charge the individual with any crime. In order to get his money back Zaferis was told that he would have to PROVE to the DEA that he was INNOCENT and that the money was not drug related. [End quoting]

This is a common practice, nowadays. When are we going to stop it??

TAX LAW SUPPORTS COMPANIES LEAVING THE COUNTRY

From THE FREE PRESS, Vol. 5, No. 3, 4/24/98: [quoting]

Senator Byron Dorgan (D-ND). Congressional Record. Senate.

I introduced an amendment a couple of weeks ago, that was defeated on the floor of the Senate. I am going to introduce it again at some point, I feel so strongly about it. We not only have trade rules that are so unfair [NAFTA], we have a tax law, a tiny little thing, that says to companies: If you close your manufacturing plant in America and move that plant and its jobs to a tax haven country and then make the same product and ship it back to America, we will give you a tax break. It is called deferral. The company that stays here and makes a profit, pays income taxes. The company that leaves here makes the same product, and makes a profit and ships it back here pays no taxes unless they repatriate the profit. As long as they keep the profit in that foreign plant, they never pay taxes in the United States...

Although I was unsuccessful in an amendment to close that loop hole, I intend to offer it again in coming Congresses, during this Congress and the next Congress, in the hope that one day, we can begin to change the laws, both tax laws and trade laws, that I think auger against the interests of those who invest here, those who build manufacturing plants here, and, yes, those who work in those plants who expect us to have at least the rules of trade and the rules of the Tax Code be fair to American interests.

Sen. Dorgan: 800-962-3524, Fax 202-224-1193 [End quoting]

The elite are doing their best to collapse the United States and drive us into poverty by eliminating manufacturing.

DAN BUCHANAN'S FLYING COLORS

From THE DAILY NEWS, Los Angeles, 7/16/98: [quoting]

Dan Buchanan flies one of the quieter aircraft on the air show circuit, a graceful, silent Airwave hang glider.

Seventeen years ago, Buchanan became a paraplegic after a rough landing in a severe storm. Since then he has accrued more than 2,100 hours of flight time in his hang gliders, much of it ridgesoaring the ocean breezes off the Pacific Coast and thermal soaring as high as 18,000 feet over the Sierra Nevada. His longest hang glider flight was six hours.

Buchanan's real passion, though, is sharing his thrill of flight with the millions of air show fans across North America during his 17-city, 65-performance tour.

Launching his Airwave glider from a moving trailer on the runway that he designed and constructed for air shows, Buchanan lifts off the vehicle at 35 mph and climbs to 1500 feet as the hydraulic winch on the launch trailer pays out up to 3,000 feet of line. Buchanan's 18-year-old son, Mike, also a hanglider pilot, operates the winch.

In the air show, Buchanan makes several "water-ski turns" with the glider.

Upon release, he flies free, as the tow line quickly rewinds with a high speed electric motor. Watch for the action as he circles and dives, talking to the audience from the glider.

He also performs after dark for a dazzling display of special effects.

Buchanan's air show glider is the only hang glider in North America registered with the FAA as an experimental aircraft rather than an ultralight.

A licensed pyrotechnician, Buchanan loads the special effects on the wing himself to perform his day and night show in such location as Australia, Thailand, Canada and Mexico.

Flying isn't Buchanan's only athletic interest. In his spare time, he also pursues cycling, sailing, kayaking and snow and water skiing.

When asked why he flies, he says, "I have to fly—I can't walk." [End quoting]

Do any of us think we are "disabled"?? If so, maybe we'd better do some serious soul searching and rise to the challenge!

POLITICAL LYING IS NO CRIME, WASHINGTON HIGH COURT RULES

From THE AUSTIN AMERICAN STATESMAN, by Terry McDermott, 6/19/98: [quoting]

The good people of the state of Washington have been told not to be so good. Or at least not to demand it of others.

The state Supreme Court has thrown out a law that made lying in political campaigns a crime. The court, in a divided opinion, held that although telling the truth is a good thing to do—even in politics—it is an infringement of the First Amendment guarantee of free speech for government to decide what somebody should say, regardless of truth or falsity.

In a 5-4 majority, the court held to a classic First Amendment position: Limiting political speech would have a chilling effect on debate. The minority was incredulous that outlawing malicious lies would harm the electoral process. A dissent declared that the "Washington state Supreme Court becomes the first court in the history of the Republic to declare First Amendment protection for calculated lies."

Reading the news at his breakfast table, Blair Butterworth, a local political consultant, joked that he couldn't restrain himself: "Free at last! Free at last!" he shouted.

Butterworth said the law was difficult to interpret and awkward to enforce, leading to "weird discussions" with state bureaucrats over the nature of truth.

A handful of states have similar statutes. None has as yet been reviewed by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Washington state authorities are expected to appeal last week's decision in the hope that the Supreme Court will eventually give some guidance in what is an especially tricky and contentious area of law.

The ruling concerned a campaign over a ballot initiative that would have allowed physician-assisted suicide. Opponents of the initiative, which failed, published a flier asserting the measure so lacked sufficient safeguards that "your eye doctor could kill you". [End quoting]

This is a pretty good indicator of the moral collapse of our society.

Defense Secretary William Cohen warned Monday the government might let selected military bases fall into disrepair if Congress does not agree to his demand for two more rounds of politically sensitive base reductions in 2001 and 2005.

"It's possible we would start to let a number of those facilities which are not so-called core facilities start to deteriorate," Cohen said.

Cohen said the only alternative would be to make cuts in new aircraft and weapons programs. [End quoting]

NSA REVEALS SECRET CODE

Excerpted from the INTERNET, 6/26/98: [quoting]

In a move that reflects a shift toward the US government adopting off-the-shelf security products, the nation's most secretive spy agency has declassified two formerly secret algorithms used to scramble government and military communications. Tuesday's action also closes the book on a five-year-old federal government effort to build a secret eavesdropping 'back door' into phones and other consumer devices. The National Security Agency (NSA) has released both Key Exchange algorithm and the Skipjack algorithm to computer security companies that are interested in developing off-the-shelf products that will work with existing federal communications systems. The Skipjack algorithm is at the heart of the notorious Clipper eavesdropping chip. The idea behind that technology—which has been soundly thrashed by privacy activists since it was first announced in April 1993—was that communications on Clipper-enabled devices would be accessible to law enforcement agencies needing wiretaps for the alleged purpose of investigating crimes. [End quoting]

This is more elite propaganda baloney.

WORLD'S FIRST
AIR-POWERED TAXI
FROM FRANCE

From PLANETARY CONNECTIONS, issue 16, 1998: [quoting]

The world's first vehicle to run on air is going into production in Mexico. To start with 40,000 ZP (Zero Pollution) taxis and urban delivery vehicles will be produced by Dina, a government licensee and the aim is to replace all Mexico City's 87,000 petro and diesel taxis.

The Mexican authorities searched the world for a silent engine with no pollution before discovering Guy Negre's engine laboratory in Brignoles in France. The inventor has taken three years to perfect his motor which runs on a tankful of compressed air. In trials, the engine powered a Citroen chassis for 10 hours with a top speed of 60 miles per hour. And as it drives along its carbon filtering system can suck in polluted air and breathe out clean air.

The Mexican version, designed by an Italian, looks like a small family car with a separate compartment for the driver and four seats in the back. Monsieur Negre, who worked on racing cars for 30 years said, "Formula One cars are started using compressed air as the fuel which drives the engine."

When the whole system is in place, 300 litres of compressed air can be pumped into the tank under high pressure in three minutes and the car can also be refueled at home in four hours.

The electricity for the home air compressor would cost [a little bit] but the air, of course, is free. [End quoting]

ROYAL SUPPORT FOR GENETIC FOOD WITHDRAWAL

From PLANETARY CONNECTIONS, issue 16, 1998: [quoting]

Prince Charles is backing calls by an organic farming lobby group for supermarkets to stop selling foods with genetically engineered ingredients.

The Soil Association has won the Prince's support for its campaign urging shops to withdraw modified products from their shelves by 2000.

It is challenging eight store chains to agree to meet the deadline.

In a letter sent to 1,500 homes by the Association recently, the Prince says that experts should not ask if genetically altering food is possible or safe, but whether it is right.

Prince Charles supports organic farming. The Prince wrote: "I believe that this particular technology is so powerful and so far-reaching that we should seek ways of engaging a wide range of people and

THE SUBSTITUTE

Who was this strange man on my doorstep?

From ANGELS ON EARTH, Jan./Feb. 1998, Guideposts, 39 Seminary Hill Rd., Carmel, NY 10512: [quoting]

Ever since I was adopted at age three I had fought anxiety over being around people. By age 30 those feelings had begun to get the better of me. I spent more and more time alone. So it was not easy to begin dating Tom, or to accept his invitation to the annual Christmas party at Ohio State University in Columbus, where he was on the staff. But Tom described what a wonderful event it would be, and I actually looked forward to the party.

Then, right before he was supposed to pick me up, Tom called. "I'm so sorry," he said. "I have a family emergency and can't make it." He was sending someone in his place.

I started to panic. I had counted on having Tom beside me while I met a new crowd. Now I would be going with a complete stranger. God, I'm really going to need your help to get through this evening.

The man who appeared at my apartment door seemed nice enough: about 40, tall and good-looking. "Call me Rick," he said, his dark eyes twinkling. On the drive to the campus he told me he was a psychology professor at OSU, "Dr. Richards" to his students. His gentle manner put me at ease, and the party turned out to be even more fun than I'd hoped. We danced to all the popular groups—The Temptations, The Beatles, The Beach Boys. Why can't I always feel this confident? I wondered.

Rick went to get us more punch while I stood talking to some new acquaintances, my hands clasped behind my back. Unexpectedly, he came up behind me, playfully grasping my hands. Blood rushed to my head. Before I could even think what I was doing I jerked my hands away, whirled around and slapped him across the face. He pulled back quickly, rubbing his cheek.

"What did I do to deserve that?" Rick asked with a surprised grin. Embarrassed, I tried to regain control. Rick followed me to a quiet corner of the room. "I'm sorry I frightened you," he said.

"No, it's me, Rick. I don't know why I reacted that way."

"I can help you, if you want." I knew it was the psychology professor talking, and I looked at him questioningly. "Was there something in your past that might have triggered it?" he asked.

"Nothing I can remember," I said.

"Then let's go see your parents. Maybe they remember."

The next day, as we drove to my parents' home in Mount Vernon, 50 miles north, I told Rick more about myself. My discomfort in crowds. Panic attacks. How I avoided elevators and felt trapped when I got on an airplane. All symptoms of claustrophobia, he said. But the incident at the party had been a new reaction, and a frightening one to me. "I was scared to death," I said. "Why?"

"We'll find out," Rick answered, his smile reassuring.

My mother couldn't recall any traumatic childhood experience I might have had. She suggested talking to the matron at the Knox County Children's Home, from which I'd been adopted. Rick drove me there. I hadn't seen the place since I was three, but its rooms looked familiar as Rick and I walked through the building to the matron's office.

"I'm Dr. Richards," Rick told her, handing her his card. "This woman is under my care, and I'd like to see her records."

"That's confidential information," the matron said, "but I'll try to answer your questions and help if I can. I wasn't here when Gaye was a child."

Rick was dauntless. He asked if anything could have happened at the home that would cause me to suffer apprehension and claustrophobia. Eventually the matron gave in, and spent several minutes looking through old files, finally retrieving a folder thick with papers. She studied them, then said, "Gaye came here when she was two. Prospective foster parents took her in a few months later." The matron glanced at me, and Rick reached for my hand. "One night," she continued, "they went out, leaving her home alone. They had tied her hands behind her back, set her on a stool in a closet and closed the door."

Rick squeezed my hand. I shut my eyes and listened to the rest of the terrible story. "A neighbor heard crying and screaming," the matron said. "She let herself into the apartment and followed the sounds of weeping till she found the child in the closet."

We learned that I'd been returned to the home after that night, and was soon adopted by the loving couple who became my parents. Rick and I drove away from the children's home in silence. After a few miles I turned to Rick. "What kind of people were they to do that to a child?"

"Perhaps they were abused themselves," Rick answered. "Perhaps they knew nothing different." I shook my head. There couldn't be an explanation for such cruelty.

At my apartment door Rick kissed me on the forehead and said, "Now that you know what's at the root of your problems you can begin to get well."

I never saw him again. I asked Tom about him but he knew Rick only casually. They'd met just once, soon after Tom realized he'd have to cancel our date. "Before I even knew what was happening, we had agreed he would take my place. It all seemed to fall together without my doing anything," Tom explained.

When I called OSU I was flabbergasted to find there was no Dr. Richards on staff. It seemed unbelievable, but two short days in his presence had changed my life. Gradually I did get over my claustrophobia and my panic attacks, just as he'd predicted, and I've learned to forgive the people who set those feelings in motion. Help hadn't knocked at their door as it had at mine. —by Gaye Hughes, Mount Vernon, Ohio [End quoting]

The Darkness Deepens: Four Weeks Until Dictatorship?

7/18/98 DR. AL OVERHOLT

THE DARKNESS DEEPENS: FOUR WEEKS UNTIL DICTATORSHIP

From the INTERNET, 7/14/98: [quoting] I'd suggest that everyone read this, and if it disturbs you, as it does me, that you contact your representatives and insist that they join the fight against Executive Order 13083. Time is running out. (—Bruce)

A Compass For Moral Excellence, published worldwide from Washington.

"The accumulation of all powers, legislative, executive and judiciary, in the same hands, whether on one, a few or many and whether hereditary, self appointed or elective, may justly be pronounced the very definition of tyranny." —James Madison, The Federalist Papers, No. 47

"Stroke of the pen. Law of the land. Kinda cool." —Paul Begala, Clinton Presidential Aide, July 1998

Many folks have forgotten that Adolf Hitler did not seize power in 1933. He was elected by popular vote in an election a great deal less rigged than the 1996 US Presidential election. Sixty-five years later, though our attention has rightly been drawn frequently to the importance of remembering the Holocaust, few have even noticed that the United States stands perilously close to dictatorship, a tragic irony given the immense dimensions of the Jewish presence in Hollywood, the media and the White House. But unless Congress, Kenneth Starr, impeachment proceedings, or the Good Lord intervenes, Bill Clinton, with his long history of abuses of office, drugs, women and human life, will officially become The Dictator of America.

Remarkably, few Americans have the slightest clue that such a tragedy is about to occur. And the so-called media will probably breathe not a word about it when it happens. They will bear equal responsibility with the perpetrator for the impending loss of liberty. If it is true that more Americans get their lies from ABC than from any other source, as is claimed, Disney, which owns ABC, will be guilty of the greatest complicity, and CNN will really owe the American people an apology—in addition to apologies for the countless other lies they and the networks have broadcast over the years: the lies of trivia, the lies of false opinion polls, the lies of bias, the lies of no-think and double-think, and the lies of omission.

On August 12, unless Congress vetoes it with a two-thirds vote, Executive order 13083 will become law. The order was signed by Mr. Clinton on May 14 in a hotel room in Birmingham, England while he was attending the G7 Summit. It effectively terminates States' rights and the authority of Congress in many areas of national life [emphasis mine]. Here is the exact wording of the most relevant part:

"Section 3, (d) It is important to recognize the distinction between matters of national or multi-state scope (which may justify Federal action) and matters that are merely common to the States (which may not justify Federal action because individual states, acting individually or together, may effectively deal with them). Matters of national or multi-state scope that justify Federal action may arise in a variety of circumstances, including:

"(1) When the matter to be addressed by Federal action occurs interstate as opposed to being contained within one State's boundaries.

"(2) When the source of the matter to be addressed occurs in a State different from the State (or States) where a significant amount of the harm occurs.

"(3) When there is a need for uniform national standards.

"(4) When decentralization increases the cost of government, imposing additional burdens on the taxpayer.

"(5) When States have not adequately protected individual rights and liberties.

"(6) When States would be reluctant to impose necessary regulations because of fears that regulated business activity will relocate to other States.

"(7) When placing regulatory authority at the State or local level would undermine regulatory goals because high costs or demands for specialized expertise will effectively place the regulatory matter beyond the resources of State authorities.

"(8) When the matter relates to Federally owned or managed property or natural resources, trust obligations, or international obligations.

"(9) When the matter to be regulated significantly or uniquely affects Indian tribal governments.

"This order shall be effective 90 days after the date of this order.”

WILLIAM J. CLINTON,
THE WHITE HOUSE,
May 14, 1998

As you will have deduced, this order gives the President the ability to do anything he wishes without being subjected to the constraints of the Checks and Balances imposed by the CONSTITUTION to safeguard liberty. Phrases like “uniform national standards” and “regulatory goals” should send a chill up the spine. Surely the goal of a free people is the elimination of regulations and standards? But America is no longer free.

You don’t believe this is happening? Why? Because the language sounds innocuous enough? Yet did you believe the deaths of Ron Brown, Vincent Foster and 105 other Clinton associates? They’re all very, very dead. Did you believe that Princess Diana could be murdered so blatantly? She’s dead too. Did you believe that innocent civilians could be slaughtered at Waco, Oklahoma City and in numerous “accidents”, plane crashes and bombings? They’re all extremely dead. When you look at what Mr. Clinton and his global associates have already accomplished, the truth begins to glimmer through the innocuous language.

As Hayek observed, “[Totalitarian propaganda] are destructive of all morals because they undermine one of the foundations of all morals: the sense of and the respect for truth. Few traits of totalitarian regimes are so characteristic as the complete perversion of language.” (The Road to Serfdom, 1944). And there has been no greater pervert, especially of language, than the current occupant of the oval office.

In some ways, it seems absurd to compare Bill Clinton with Adolf Hitler. First, Mr. Clinton does not wear a mustache. Secondly, though one never knows what he really believes, he does not seem to hate Jews [See my comment below].

Indeed, many Jewish people have been his dutiful servants. Some have climbed into bed with him, figuratively and literally. Thirdly, he has no territorial ambitions. On the contrary, he has surrendered the United States to Communist China.

But there are similarities. Like Hitler, Bill Clinton was brought up by an indulgent, doting mother with an absent father. Like Hitler, Clinton has come to be deluded by his own prowess. After all, if he can get away with a few audacious crimes, why not order more? And like Hitler, he rose to power claiming to be defending the poor and the downtrodden, when in reality, he is the one who has been goose-stepping all over the rights and liberties of the poor, downtrodden, American people.

There seems little doubt that he who proclaimed the era of big government to be over has been reading Mein Kampf, presumably while obtaining relief from kneeling interns. As Hitler said: “The broad mass of a nation will more easily fall victim to a big lie than to a small one.” (Chapter 10) And no lies are bigger than those the Clinton-run media have been daily pumping into America’s living rooms.

Hitler also wrote “a great number of basically different enemies must always be described as belonging to the same group, so that as far as the mass of your followers is concerned, the battle is being waged against a single enemy. This strengthens the belief in the rightness of your cause”. Thus it is possible for every disaster, especially those Clinton himself has orchestrated to be blamed on “a vast right wing conspiracy”.

So what can we do between now and August 12? If you call Congress (202-225 3121), you might ask for Ron Paul (R-TX) or Bob Barr (R-GA), two of the few who care enough about freedom to be willing to act to preserve it. If you are still wondering how can this happen with a Republican Congress, here are some recent additions to the law (We are obliged to WorldNet Daily’s Claire Wolfe for compiling the list. You can and should read WorldNet Daily at <http://www.worldnetdaily.com>):

1. A national database of all employed people.

2. 100 pages of new “health care crimes”, for which the penalty includes seizure of assets.

3. Confiscation of assets from any American who establishes foreign citizenship.

4. The largest gun confiscation act in US history—which is also an unconstitutional ex-postfacto law and the first law ever to remove individual constitutional rights for committing a misdemeanor.

5. A law banning guns in ill-defined school zones, where random roadblocks may be used for enforcement; gun-bearing residents can be deemed criminals just by stepping outside their doors.

6. Increased funding for the hated Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, infamous for its brutality, dishonesty and ineptitude.

7. A law enabling the executive branch to declare various groups “terrorists”—without stating any reason and without the possibility of appeal. Once a group has been so declared, its mailing and membership lists must be turned over to the government.

8. A law authorizing secret trials with secret evidence for certain classes of people.

9. A law requiring that all states begin issuing drivers licenses carrying Social Security numbers and “security features” (such as magnetically coded fingerprints and personal records) by October 1, 2000.

10. A national database to contain every exchange that takes place in doctors’ offices, including prescription records, and, by law, any statements you make and any observations your doctor makes about your mental or physical condition, whether accurate or not, whether made with your knowledge or not.

Other than being invasive and unconstitutional, what do these laws have in common? They were all passed by the Republican Congress, the very same folks who pledged to “get government off your back”.

Long ago, the Two-Party/Media axis seized power in America. On August 12, the Land of the Free will become de jure into what it already is de facto: a dictatorship. As we pray for deliverance from tyranny, and “put on the full armor of God so you can take your stand against the devil’s schemes” (Ephesians 6:11). Let us urgently brace ourselves to do what is necessary to regain our liberty. And let us vow never again to be distracted as evil men attempt to enslave us. —Steve Myers, Editor

KNOWLEDGE IS POWER

Excerpted from the INTERNET, <<http://www.devvy.com/main.html>>, 7/14/98: [quoting]

For those unfamiliar with POWER, this project was founded by Devvy Kidd. POWER is a First Amendment grassroots effort to educate and motivate Americans to get involved with curing the cancers of our nation before the One World Order architects bring America to her knees under a totalitarian, Communist regime. The threat to America is as real as the Sun in the sky, yet most Americans are unaware of this danger lurking just over the horizon.

There are double-digit millions of people who are working as hard as humanly possible to get the truth to our fellow countrymen—they are truly the unsung heroes of today. Once you understand the truth behind mechanisms like the privately owned “Federal” Reserve, the IRS, the UN and others, you will finally understand why America continues to slide further and further into moral and fiscal bankruptcy, the loss of our freedoms and our precious sovereignty as a Republic. Despite the reprehensible and despicable actions of politicians and political talking heads on TV, America is NOT a demo[n]cracy [my insertion]. Our legal form of government is a Republic.

There are significant words from those who would enslave US in this nightmare scenario called the New World Order or One World Order. Please consider the material available from POWER, not as Republican or Democrat, conservative or liberal, Black, White, tall or short. The material presented on this web site is factual and can be backed up with documentation. Americans need to readjust their thinking pattern from being a Republican, Democrat, Liberal, Moderate or Conservative or hyphenated something or other and then American. The truth is none of these labels and neither is the U.S. Constitution, it’s generic.

Please consider the information presented in this web site as what’s good for America, what is UN-American and Anti-American. We the People of this nation must stand shoulder to shoulder, strong and firm in our commitment to restore America to a Constitutional Republic.

Consider these words by two very important players working diligently to bring US into a one-world religion [Godless New Age], one-world government [somewhere in Europe], one-world bank and a one-world robocop force—UN Hessian-type troops which are slated to replace our military. No? Once you’ve done your homework, you will know that this is a true and factual statement. How could this happen?

America has been asleep and the trust they put into their elected public officials has been grossly violated.

“Today Americans would be outraged if U.N. troops entered Los Angeles to restore order; tomorrow they will be grateful! This is especially true if they were told there was an outside threat from beyond, whether real or promulgated, that threatened our very existence. It is then that all peoples of the world will pledge with world leaders to deliver them from this evil. The one thing every man fears is the unknown. When presented with this scenario, individual rights will be willingly relinquished for the guarantee of their well being granted to them by their world government."

Henry Kissinger [quoted above] in an address to the Bilderberger meeting at Evian, France, May 21, 1992. This was transcribed from a tape recording made by a Swiss delegate. Unfortunately for Mr. Kissinger and his globalist masters, they have severely underestimated the grit and patriotism of the American people. We will NEVER allow our country to fall to this "New World Order" regardless of the personal sacrifices that must be made.

"We are grateful to the Washington Post, the NY Times, Time Magazine and other great publications whose directors have attended our meetings and respected their promises of discretion for almost 40 years....It would have been impossible for us to develop our plan for the world if we had been subjected to the lights of publicity during those years. But, the world is more sophisticated and prepared to march towards a world government. The supernatural sovereignty of an intellectual elite and world bankers is surely preferable to the national autodetermination practiced in past centuries."

David Rockefeller [quoted above] speaking at the Bilderberger meeting in June 1991 in Baden Baden, Germany. This meeting was also attended by Dan Quayle and Bill Clinton, who was introduced to these international traitors by none other than Vernon Jordan. If you or I attended meetings—held in total secrecy, surrounded by guards armed with UZIs and other assorted assault weapons—and planned the downfall of America, we would be tried for sedition. These globalists, i.e., Henry Kissinger, David Rockefeller, Sen. Jay Rockefeller, have sold out America for their own lust of power. Reality check for them: America will NOT fall to her knees for these petty henchmen of the world order.

The sheer enormity and amount of information contained in this web site can be overwhelming, so we recommend that you take it one step at a time. Our beloved Republic is in grave danger and every sovereign citizen in this country has the obligation and the duty to safeguard our freedoms paid for with the precious blood of Americans before us. We must not shame their memory because the television set, going to the mall, or a round of golf has become more important than freedom.

We must dedicate ourselves to this fight for freedom, for all America has stood for in the past and for all we will stand for in the future. We the People must be the army of America, the leadership for America as William Wallace was for the people of Scotland. We can turn things around by learning to fight smart using the system our forefathers gave us that has held us for so long. Violence is not the answer; unity, dedication and commitment is our weapon. [emphasis mine]

"I am concerned for the security of our great nation, not so much because of any threat from without, but because of the insidious forces working from within." —General Douglas MacArthur

Those threats MacArthur spoke about from within are directly dictated by the global masters who orchestrate wars and who are draining the lifeblood of America. The threat to the Union is both foreign and domestic.

[End quoting]

I hope Devvy is correct about "we won't let them take us over"—at the present time it doesn't look good. But with her type of commitment and if enough of God's people wake up we will prevent the takeover.

Work like your life depends on it—because it does. And pray often!!

Jack Gerritsen Beats The System; Frank Turney Still Under The Gun

Court authorities around the country are getting touchy about FIJA's (Fully-Informed Jury Assoc.) literature distribution efforts in front of courthouses, and have gone so far in two recent cases as to charge FIJA activists with jury tampering. Now really, FIJA literature distribution has nothing in common with jury tampering, which involves bribing or intimidating jurors in order to influence the outcome of a particular case. As long as the case being heard is not even mentioned by people distributing FIJA literature, the authorities don't have a legal leg to stand on. But since the conviction rate for victimless crimes is falling, apparently as a result of FIJA's educational efforts, the powers that be are getting desperate.

Jack Gerritsen of Los Angeles went to trial on felony jury tampering charges for handing out FIJA's "True or False?" brochures, and the jury hung, 5 for acquittal and 7 for conviction. The prosecutor, after talking to the jury, decided he would be unable to seat a jury which would be willing to convict, so he dropped all charges! VICTORY!! The jury spent 3 days in deliberation. The group in favor of acquittal was led by a Black lady.

(See his letter of Sept. 3 reproduced in the letters section.) Jack had to put up $5,000 to the bail bondsman to cover the $50,000 bail, and he's out that amount. Contributions can be sent to Jack at 6217 Palm Ave, Bell, CA 90201.

Undaunted, Jack continues to distribute FIJA literature at the Criminal Courts Building, once or twice per week. One of the 60 courtrooms in this building houses the O.J. Simpson trial.

Former FIJA State Coordinator Frank Turney is facing felony jury tampering charges in Fairbanks, Alaska for encouraging jurors to call 1-800-TEL-JURY. Prosecutors in the Fairbanks area are reportedly becoming desperate that they can no longer get all the convictions they were used to, due to the large number of hung juries lately. The trial date has been set for December 5, though Frank is seeking a continuance to February.

The straw that broke the camel's back was supposedly a recent case in which a man, drunk in the privacy of his home, blasted his television and fish bowl. No one was injured. But since he was a convicted felon, technically he was not allowed to own a gun.

Frank gave FIJA information to five of the jurors, and others saw the 800-TEL-JURY number displayed and the result was an acquittal. Prosecutors went to the grand jury for a supposedly secret indictment of Frank, but word leaked out. The prosecutor admitted they were poking around in a privileged area, but that didn't stop him. Eight of the jurors were hauled before the grand jury, where some of them said that they had seen Frank's 1-800-TEL-JURY sign, and had called the number. They said this information influenced their verdict. One juror also said he saw a show on the Arts and Entertainment network which dealt with the Kevorkian trial, and which discussed jury veto power. (The A & E network had contacted FIJA HQ for information.) A tape of the 800-TEL-JURY message, which features Gary Dusseljee's voice, was recorded and played (and replayed 7 or 8 times) by the prosecutor for the grand jury! The grand jury hearing lasted for 3 days. Gary may be subpoenaed from California to testify.

The jurors were asked whether they were members of the NRA, or FIJA, and how many guns they had in their homes. They were also asked whether they went along with the judge's instructions, and were asked what went on during jury deliberations.

Some of the jurors were extremely upset, and juror Rick Ellis met with Frank, and went to the media with his complaints. Two jurors may file a civil suit against the court.

A data base on potential jurors has been established by local authorities, and a professional manager has been hired to ensure "well managed jurors".

The evidence which the prosecutor intends to introduce is simply the 800-TEL-JURY number, and presumably the tape recording made by the prosecutor. Whether he will also introduce a copy of the Jury Power Information Kit, which you get if you call the 800 number, is not known. Frank insists he never mentioned anything about any particular case while distributing literature, and he is not charged with doing so, though he did tell jurors to call the 800 number verbally. The judge placed a gag order on Frank, prohibiting him from discussing this "evidence" (!) with the media or anyone else, and kept him from coming within 2 blocks of the courthouse. On Sept. 22, the gag order was lifted.

Prior to the issuance of the gag order, Frank appeared on most local radio and television stations. He also put in an appearance every Monday and Tuesday in front of the courthouse, passing out FIJA literature. He gave literature to two grand jury members as they came out, and they in turn were questioned by the prosecutor. Many articles have appeared surrounding this controversy (see the collage section). Frank also has 3 signs up in the vicinity of the courthouse.

While the gag order was in effect, FIJA state Coordinator Don Burnett made numerous television and radio appearances, and gave interviews with the print media. He has also organized regular protests at the courthouse ("every Monday from now on"), including one on Jury Rights Day, which received excellent coverage. Don said he is under investigation himself.

Attorney Robert Sparks volunteered to do preliminary work on behalf of Frank, for which we are grateful. Mr. Sparks was not experienced in felony defense cases, so an attorney to handle the defense was sought. An enthusiastic attorney with the Alaska Department of Public Advocacy, John Franich, has stepped forward, prepared to fight the case on constitutional grounds. FIJA activist Jack Gerritsen from Los Angeles, himself the victim of unfounded jury tampering charges, called Frank to offer his support. (Jack's jury refused to convict him—see the California news.)

UN REBUFFED

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 7/13/98: [quoting] Governor John Engler of Michigan sent a UN official packing who wanted to check for state abuses of female prisoners. Gov. Engler said the UN high commissioner for human rights was being used as an "unwitting tool" by the U.S. Justice Department in a "baseless lawsuit" over allegations of abuse in the state's prisons for females. He had previously barred Justice Department investigators from one of them. The rebuke is intended to send a signal that the state will fully defend its legal rights, said the governor. [End quoting]

It's about time these Governors obeyed their Constitutional oaths of protecting the people from their enemies—even though it's the U.S. GOVERNMENT.

I bet he'd appreciate sack loads of thank-yous. It would help reinforce his backbone when the elite throw some more of their dirty tricks at him—which they surely will. How about it??

Even though they have prison problems the issue is foreign meddling—the U.S. and U.N. and not the fact that they belong in or out of prison. We need to support people who are standing up against the theft of freedom when it is done non-violently!!

THE WORM TURNS

From THE SPOTLIGHT, 7/13/98: [quoting]

A group of Idaho citizens, fed up with a "good ol' boy" cavalier and unjust court system, has filed a lawsuit in federal court against state Attorney General Al Lance and four county prosecutors. The intent was to file against every prosecutor in the state but it was decided to first concentrate where proof positive of wrongdoing is best documented. The suit is a direct attack on the legal fiction of "prosecutorial immunity" in this nation that has allowed prosecutors to place themselves above the law and make a sham of American justice, according to involved Idahoans. [End quoting]

Here's another good one for you who don't know what to do to help save our country. Check into this and support it if it checks out as legit. It's these types of things—if enough good people start supporting them—that can help. ☸

FASCISM IN ALASKA!

Jury Rights Project: Update on Frank Turney Case in Alaska

From the INTERNET, courtesy of Calvin Burgin, <wrldline@texas.net>, 7/10/98: [quoting]

On July 2, 1998, Frank Turney was sentenced to 60 days in jail, 6 years probation, 100 hours of community service and a $500.00 fine.

Frank plans on appealing, hopefully with a different lawyer this time.

Frank Turney was convicted on March 6, 1998 of three counts of felony jury tampering for distributing the hotline number for the Fully-Informed Jury Association (1-800-TEL-JURY) outside a Fairbanks, Alaska courthouse in 1994. Turney has been leafletting the Fairbanks courthouse since 1990, distributing FIJA brochures that contain quotes about jury rights from radicals like Thomas Jefferson ("I consider trial by jury as the only anchor yet imagined by man which a government can be held to the principles of its constitution") and John Adams ("It is not only his right, but his duty... to find the verdict according to his own best understanding, judgement, and conscience, through indirect opposition to the direction of the court.")

Frank should never have been prosecuted for exercising his First Amendment rights and educating potential jurors about their rights. It is amazing that a jury would convict him of a crime, but that is indicative of the extent of jury intimidation that is practiced by prosecutors and judges in courtrooms nationwide. (Frank was represented by a public defender.)

Thinking Can Be A Dangerous Habit!

7/16/98 #1 HATONN

EACH DAY!

Ok, today we have, if you sleep at night, a new day. Do you need to “think” today? Do you need to “choose” today? Indeed, from the moment of the first CONSCIOUSNESS. Do you live your life in such a way as to be prepared for the possibilities of what might happen during this day or do you move on rote conveyors of “get through it”? You will note that it becomes pretty unhealthy to “THINK”; nobody seems to like one who actually THINKS! It is fine to have opinions and speculations about everything, but don’t THINK.

Pete Creech sent something from AntiShyster a couple of weeks ago—for a chuckle—but it took a week around these parts to be able to laugh at the contents. It gets to be frightening as to the extent of people’s non-thinking and yet everyone babbling and tattling and, like children, sharing and “turning in” another because you blew it yourself in some way. You have reached a time in life, readers, where there can be no confidences of long-standing with even those you thought to be friends. How can you know that you are going to be “turned in” to the Watchers for someone’s non-thinking babbling? Gossip has killed more people than any amount of TRUTH ever could. People have opinions based on NOTHING—absolutely nothing—but they babble and speculate (just like with Clinton-Starr) while nobody outside the Grand Jury room even knows anything about what they are talking. Then, comes the day, like today, when this garbage is introduced into a courtroom and accepted as fact while facts are disallowed entry even into the record.

Let me just offer a bit of fun for this morning:

[QUOTING: ANTISHYSTER, Vol. 8, No. 1]

TRUE CONFESSIONS

by Bob Worn

The onset was insidious—I didn’t realize what I had become... Oh, it started out innocently enough. I began to think at parties now and then to loosen up. Inevitably though, one thought led to another, and soon I was more than just a social thinker.

I found myself consuming the writings of both the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution at one sitting—and on an empty stomach, besides. I knew I had a problem, but I just didn’t know how bad.

I began to think alone—“to relax”, I told myself at first—but I knew it wasn’t true.

Thinking became more and more important to me, until finally I was thinking all the time. I even began to think on the job. I knew that thinking and employment don’t mix, but I couldn’t stop myself.

I began to avoid friends at lunchtime so I could read The New American magazine. I’d disguise the Spotlight as my lunch wrap just so people wouldn’t see I was actually reading. I’d return to my office dizzied and confused with new insight, asking “What exactly are we doing?”

Things weren’t going too well at home either. One evening I actually turned off the TV and asked my wife to think about the meaning of life. She spent that night at her mother’s.

I soon developed a reputation as a heavy thinker. One day the boss called me in and said, “I like you, Bob, and it hurts me to say this, but your thinking has become a real problem. If you don’t stop thinking on the job, you’ll have to find employment elsewhere.”

This gave me a lot to think about.

I came home early after my conversation with the boss. “Honey,” I confessed, “I’ve been thinking...”

“I know you’ve been thinking,” she shrieked, “and that is why I want a divorce!”

“But Honey, surely it’s not that serious.”

“It is serious!” she screamed, her lower lip quiver. “You think as much as college professors, and college professors don’t make any money! So if you keep on thinking, soon we won’t have any money! Money is what life is all about! DO YOU HEAR ME?!”

I explained, “That’s a faulty syllogism, Dear,” and she began to cry hysterically.

I’d had enough. I snarled, “I’m going to the library,” and stomped out the door. I headed for the library, in the mood for some “Take Back America” back issues. I roared into the parking lot and ran up the big glass doors... but they didn’t open! My God, the library was closed! As I sank to the ground, clawing at the cold, unfeeling glass, whimpering for The Federalist Papers, a poster caught my eye. It read, “Friend, is heavy thinking ruining your life?” (You probably recognize that line; it’s from the standard “Thinkers Anonymous” poster.)

Soon, there I was, the newest member of “Thinkers Anonymous”. I hesitated at first—then stood up and said in nervous voice, “Hi, my name is Bob and I’m a thinker.”

“HI BOB!” was the loud and friendly chorus from the other TA members. Which is why I am what I am today: a “recovering thinker”.

Now, I never go to the library, I never turn off the TV and I never miss a TA meeting. At each meeting we watch a non-educational video; last week it was Porky’s. Next week it will be the Chartreuse Caboose. Beach Blanket Bingo is coming soon. And we never miss a replay of Monday Night Football, NEVER.

We always have refreshments—one type of pastry and one type of beverage—no choices—NO thinking!

It’s the way life should be. Calm—peaceful—no reason or temptation to think. Then we share experiences about how we avoided thinking since the last TA meeting.

Without TA, thinking could have ruined my life, my career, my marriage, and cost me my friends and loved ones. I shudder when I reflect on what might have happened.

But with TA, I still have my job (now that I stopped thinking, I even got promoted) and things are a lot better at home, too—more quiet and... ummn... unthinking. In fact, since I joined TA and stopped thinking, my whole life just seems, well...somehow easier. And now I fit into American society a whole lot better, too. Isn’t life grand?

Finally, I want to apologize to all my friends and loved ones who were embarrassed or worried during my “problem days” of over-indulgence in thought (some say thinking is in my genes... Heaven forbid!) Since I stopped thinking and made my apology, I feel like the weight of the world has been lifted from my shoulders.

Thanks for “listening”.

Hey, Porky’s II and Xena are on TV tonight—right after the CBS Evening News! Wanna come over and watch?!

Secret History Of The Atomic Bomb

by the most gruesome objects, the fingers of a human hand fused with glass, a photograph of the shadow of a man on a brick wall; the man had been vaporized in the explosion.

A NEW MISSION

When I returned to the United States, I knew that I had to unearth the sinister figures behind this greatest of human catastrophes. It took many weeks of research to uncover what turned out to be the most far-reaching conspiracy of all time, the program of a few dedicated revolutionaries to seize control of the entire world, by inventing the most powerful weapon ever unveiled.

The story begins in Germany. In the 1930s, both Germany and Japan had a number of scientists working on the development of nuclear fission. In both of these countries, their leaders sternly forbade them to continue their research. Adolf Hitler said he would never allow anyone in Germany to work on such an inhumane weapon. The emperor of Japan let his scientists know that he would never approve such a weapon. At that time, the United States had no one working on nuclear fission. The disgruntled German scientists contacted friends in the United States, and were told that there was a possibility of government support for their work here. As Don Beyer tells us, these immigrants to the United States pushed their program.

"Leo Szilard, together with his long time friends and fellow Hungarian physicists, Eugene Wigner and Edward Teller, agreed that the president must be warned; fission bomb technology was not so farfetched. The Jewish emigres, now living in America, had personal experience of fascism in Europe. In 1939, the three physicists enlisted the support of Albert Einstein. A letter dated August 2 signed by Einstein was delivered by Alexander Sachs to Franklin D. Roosevelt at the White House on October 11, 1939."

CRIMINALS ON DISPLAY

At the Nagasaki Atomic Bomb Museum, photographs of two men are prominently displayed; Albert Einstein, and J. Robert Oppenheimer, who developed the atomic bomb at Los Alamos Laboratories, New Mexico. Also on display is a statement from General Eisenhower, who was then Supreme Military Commander, which is found in a number of books about Eisenhower, and which can be found on p.426, Eisenhower by Stephen E.

Ambrose, Simon & Shuster, NY, 1983.

"Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson first told Eisenhower of the bomb's existence. Eisenhower was engulfed by 'a feeling of depression'. When Stimson said the United States proposed to use the bomb against Japan, Eisenhower voiced 'my grave misgivings, first on the basis of my belief that Japan was already defeated and that dropping the bomb was completely unnecessary, and secondly because I thought that our country should avoid shocking world opinion by the use (of atomic weapons).' Stimson was upset by Eisenhower's attitude 'almost angrily refuting the reasons I gave for my quick conclusion'. Three days later, Eisenhower flew to Berlin, where he met with Truman and his principal advisors. Again Eisenhower recommended against using the bomb, and again was ignored.

Other books on Eisenhower state that he endangered his career by his protests against the bomb, which the conspirators in the highest level of the United States government had already sworn to use against Japan, regardless of any military developments. Eisenhower could not have known that Stimson was a prominent member of Skull and Bones at Yale, the Brotherhood of Death, founded by the Russell Trust in 1848 as a bunch of the German Illuminati, or that they had played prominent roles in organizing wars and revolutions since that time. Nor could he have known that President Truman had only had one job in his career, as a Masonic organizer for the State of Missouri, and that the lodges he built up later sent him to the United States Senate and then to the presidency.

ATOMIC TERRORISM

The man who set all this in motion was Albert Einstein, who left Europe and came to the United States in October 1933. His wife said that he "regarded human beings with detestation". He had previously corresponded with Sigmund Freud about his projects of "peace" and "disarmament", although Freud later said he did not believe that Einstein ever accepted any of his theories. Einstein had a personal interest in Freud's work because his son Eduard spent his life in mental institutions, undergoing both insulin therapy and electroshock treatment, none of which produced any change in his condition.

When Einstein arrived in the United States, he was feted as a famous scientist, and was invited to the White House by President and Mrs. Roosevelt. He was soon deeply involved with Eleanor Roosevelt in her many leftwing causes, in which Einstein heartily concurred. Some of Einstein's biographers hail the modern era as "the Einstein Revolution" and "the Age of Einstein", possibly because he set in motion the program of nuclear fission in the United States. His letter to Roosevelt requesting that the government inaugurate an atomic bomb program was obviously stirred by his lifelong commitment to "peace and disarmament". His actual commitment was to Zionism; Ronald W. Clark mentions in Einstein; His Life And Times, Avon, 1971, p.377, "He would campaign with the Zionists for a Jewish homeland in Palestine." On p.460, Clark quotes Einstein, "As a Jew I am from today a supporter of the Jewish Zionist efforts." (1919) Einstein's letter to Roosevelt, dated August 2, 1939, was delivered personally to President Roosevelt by Alexander Sachs on October 11. Why did Einstein enlist an intermediary to bring this letter to Roosevelt, with whom he was on friendly terms? The atomic bomb program could not be launched without the necessary Wall Street sponsorship. Sachs, a Russian Jew, listed his profession as "economist" but was actually a bagman for the Rothschilds, who regularly delivered large sums of cash to Roosevelt in the White House. Sachs was an advisor to Eugene Meyer of the Lazard Freres International Banking House, and also with Lehman Brothers, another well known banker. Sachs' delivery of the Einstein letter to the White House let Roosevelt know that the Rothschilds approved of the project and wished him to go full speed ahead.

A UNITED NATIONS PROJECT

In May of 1945, the architects of postwar strategy, or, as they liked to call themselves, the "Masters of the Universe", gathered in San Francisco at the plush Palace Hotel to write the Charter for the United Nations. Several of the principals retired for a private meeting in the exclusive Garden Room. The head of the United States delegation had called this secret meeting with his top aide, Alger Hiss, representing the president of the United States and the Soviet KGB; John Foster Dulles, of the Wall Street law firm of Sullivan and Cromwell, whose mentor, William Nelson Cromwell, had been called a "professional revolutionary" on the floor of Congress; and W. Averill Harriman, plenipotentiary extraordinary, who had spent the last two years in Moscow directing Stalin's war for survival. These four men represented the awesome power of the American Republic in world affairs, yet of the four, only Secretary of State Edward Stettinius Jr., had a position authorized by the Constitution. Stettinius called the meeting to order to discuss an urgent matter; the Japanese were already privately suing for peace, which presented a grave crisis. The atomic bomb would not be ready for several more months. "We have already lost Germany," Stettinius said. "If Japan bows out, we will not have a live population on which to test the bomb."

"But, Mr. Secretary," said Alger Hiss, "no one can ignore the terrible power of this weapon." "Nevertheless," said Stettinius, "our entire postwar program depends on terrifying the world with the atomic bomb." "To accomplish that goal," said John Foster Dulles, "you will need a very good tally. I should say a million." "Yes," replied Stettinius, "we are hoping for a million tally in Japan. But if they surrender, we won't have anything." "Then you have to keep them in the war until the bomb is ready," said John Foster Dulles. "That is no problem. Unconditional surrender." "They won't agree to that," said Stettinius. "They are sworn to protect the Emperor." "Exactly," said John Foster Dulles. "Keep Japan in the war another three months, and we can use the bomb on their cities; we will end this war with the naked fear of all the peoples of the world, who will then bow to our will."

Edward Stettinius Jr. was the son of a J.P. Morgan partner who had been the world's largest munitions dealer in the First World War. He had been named by J.P. Morgan to oversee all purchases of munitions by both France and England in the United States throughout the war. John Foster Dulles was also an accomplished warmonger. In 1933, he and his brother Allen had rushed to Cologne to meet with Adolf Hitler and guaranteed him the funds to maintain the Nazi regime. The Dulles brothers were representing their clients, Kuhn Loeb Co., and the Rothschilds. Alger Hiss was the golden prince of the communist elite in the United States. When he was chosen as head of the prestigious Carnegie Endowment for International Peace after World War II, his nomination was seconded by John Foster Dulles. Hiss was later sent to prison for perjury for lying about his exploits as a Soviet espionage agent.

This secret meeting in the Garden Room was actually the first military strategy session of the United Nations, because it was dedicated to its mission of exploding the world's first atomic weapon on a living population. It also forecast the entire strategy of the Cold War, which lasted forty-three years, cost American taxpayers five trillion dollars, and accomplished exactly nothing, as it was intended to do. Thus we see that the New World Order has based its entire strategy on the agony of the hundreds of thousands of civilians burned alive at Hiroshima and Nagasaki, including many thousands of children sitting in their schoolrooms. These leaders had learned from their master, Josef Stalin, that no one can rule without mass terrorism, which in turn required mass murder. As Senator Vandenberg, leader of the Republican loyal opposition, was to say (as quoted in American Heritage magazine, August 1977), "We have got to scare the hell out of 'em."

THE JEWISH HELL-BOMB

The atomic bomb was developed at the Los Alamos Laboratories in New Mexico. The top secret project was called the Manhattan Project, because its secret director, Bernard Baruch, lived in Manhattan, as did many of the other principals. Baruch had chosen Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves to head the operation. He had previously built the Pentagon, and had a good reputation among the Washington politicians, who usually came when Baruch beckoned.

The scientific director at Los Alamos was J. Robert Oppenheimer, scion of a prosperous family of clothing merchants. In Oppenheimer; the Years Of Risk, by James Kunetka, Prentice Hall, NY, 1982, Kunetka writes, p. 106, "Baruch was especially interested in Oppenheimer for the position of senior scientific adviser." The project cost an estimated two billion dollars. No other nation in the world could have afforded to develop such a bomb. The first successful test of the atomic bomb occurred at the Trinity site, two hundred miles south of Los Alamos at 5:29:45 a.m. on July 16, 1945. Oppenheimer was beside himself at the spectacle. He shrieked, "I am become Death, the Destroyer of worlds." Indeed, this seemed to be the ultimate goal of the Manhattan Project, to destroy the world. There had been considerable fear among the scientists that the test explosion might indeed set off a chain reaction, which would destroy the entire world. Oppenheimer's exultation came from his realization that now his people had attained the ultimate power, through which they could implement their five-thousand-year desire to rule the entire world.

THE BUCK PASSES TO TRUMAN

Although Truman liked to take full credit for the decision to drop the atomic bomb on Japan, in fact, he was advised by a prestigious group, The National Defense Research Committee, consisting of George L. Harrison, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York; Dr. James B. Conant, president of Harvard, who had spent the First World War developing more effective poison gases, and who in 1942 had been commissioned by Winston Churchill to develop an Anthrax bomb to be used on Germany, which would have killed every living thing in Germany. Conant was unable to perfect the bomb before Germany surrendered, otherwise he would have had another line to add to his resumé. His service on Truman's Committee which advised him to drop the atomic bomb on Japan, added to his previous record as a chemical warfare professional, allowed me to describe him in papers filed before the United States Court of Claims in 1957, as "the most notorious war criminal of the Second World War". As Gauleiter of Germany after the war, he had ordered the burning of my book, The Federal Reserve Conspiracy, ten thousand copies having been published in Oberammergau, the site of the world-famed Passion Play.

Also on the committee were Dr. Karl Compton, and James F. Byrnes, acting Secretary of State. For thirty years, Byrnes had been known as Bernard Baruch's man in Washington. With his Wall Street profits, Baruch had built the most lavish estate in South Carolina, which he named Hobcaw Barony. As the wealthiest man in South Carolina, this epitome of the carpet-bagger also controlled the political purse strings. Now Baruch was in a position to dictate to Truman, through his man Byrnes, that he should drop the atomic bomb on Japan.

LIPMAN SIEW

Despite the fact that the Manhattan Project was the most closely guarded secret of World War II, one man, and one man only, was allowed to observe everything and to know everything about the project. He was Lipman Siew, a Lithuanian Jew who had come to the United States as a political refugee at the age of seventeen. He lived in Boston on Lawrence St., and decided to take the name of William L. Laurence. At Harvard, he became a close friend of James B. Conant and was tutored by him. When Laurence went to New York, he was hired by Herbert Bayard Swope, editor of the New York World, who was known as Bernard Baruch's personal publicity agent. Baruch owned the World. In 1930, Laurence accepted an offer from the New York Times to become its science editor. He states in Who's Who that he "was selected by the heads of the atomic bomb project as sole writer and public relations." How one could be a public relations writer for a top secret project was not explained. Laurence was the only civilian present at the historic explosion of the test bomb on July 16, 1945. Less than a month later, he sat in the copilot's seat of the B-29 on the fateful Nagasaki bombing run.

WILL JAPAN SURRENDER BEFORE THE BOMB IS DROPPED?

There were still many anxious moments for the conspirators, who planned to launch a new reign of terror throughout the world. Japan had been suing for peace. Each day it seemed less likely that she could stay in the war. On March 9 and 10, 1945, 325 B-29s had burned thirty-five square miles of Tokyo, leaving more than one hundred thousand Japanese dead in the ensuing firestorm. Of Japan's 66 biggest cities, 59 had been mostly destroyed. 178 square miles of urban dwellings had been burned, 500,000 died in the fires, and now twenty million Japanese were homeless. Only four cities had not been destroyed; Hiroshima, Kokura, Niigata, and Nagasaki. Their inhabitants had no inkling that they had been saved as target cities for the experimental atomic bomb. Maj. Gen. Leslie Groves, at Bernard Baruch's insistence, had demanded that Kyoto be the initial target of the bomb. Secretary of War Stimson objected, saying that as the ancient capital of Japan, the city of Kyoto had hundreds of historic wooden temples, and no military targets. The Jews wanted to destroy it precisely because of its great cultural importance to the Japanese people.

THE HORROR OF HIROSHIMA

While the residents of Hiroshima continued to watch the B-29s fly overhead without dropping bombs on them, they had no inkling of the terrible fate which the scientists had reserved for them. William Manchester quotes General Douglas MacArthur in American Caesar, Little Brown, 1978, p.437 [quoting:]

There was another Japan, and MacArthur was one of the few Americans who suspected its existence. He kept urging the Pentagon and the State Department to be alert for conciliatory gestures. The General predicted that the break would come from Tokyo, not the Japanese army. The General was right. A dovish coalition was forming in the Japanese capital, and it was headed by Hirohito himself, who had concluded in the spring of 1945 that a negotiated peace was the only way to end his nation's agony. Beginning in early May, a six-man council of Japanese diplomats explored ways to accommodate the Allies. The delegates informed top military officials that "our resistance is finished". [End quoting]

On p.359, Gar Alperowitz quotes Brig. Gen. Carter W. Clarke, in charge of preparing the MAGIC summary in 1945, who stated in a 1959 historical interview, "We brought them down to an abject surrender through the accelerated sinking of their merchant marine and hunger alone, and when we didn't need to do it, and knew we didn't need to do it, we used them as an experiment for two atomic bombs."

Although President Truman referred to himself as the sole authority in the decision to drop the bomb, in fact he was totally influenced by Bernard Baruch's man in Washington, James F. Byrnes. Gar Alperowitz states, p.196, "Byrnes spoke with the authority of—personally represented—the president of the United States on all bomb-related matters in the Interim Committee's deliberations." David McCullough, in his laudatory biography of Truman, which was described as "a valentine", admitted that "Truman didn't know his own Secretary of State, Stettinius. He had no background in foreign policy, no expert advisors of his own."

The tragedy of Hiroshima and Nagasaki was that a weak, inexperienced president, completely under the influence of Byrnes and Baruch, allowed himself to be manipulated into perpetrating a terrible massacre. In the introduction to Hiroshima's Shadows, we find that "Truman was moving in quite the opposite direction, largely under the influence of Byrnes. The atom bomb for Byrnes was an instrument of diplomacy—atomic diplomacy." (p.ix)

MASS MURDER

On August 6, 1945, a uranium bomb 3-235, 20 kilotons yield, was exploded 1850 feet in the air above Hiroshima, for maximum explosive effect. It devastated four square miles, and killed 140,000 of the 255,000 inhabitants. In Hiroshima's Shadows, we find a statement by a doctor who treated some of the victims; p.415, Dr. Shuntaro Hida: "It was strange to us that Hiroshima had never been bombed, despite the fact that B-29 bombers flew over the city every day. Only after the war did I come to know that Hiroshima, according to American archives, had been kept untouched in order to preserve it as a target for the use of nuclear weapons. Perhaps, if the American administration and its military authorities had paid sufficient regard to the terrible nature of the fiery demon which mankind had discovered and yet knew so little about its consequences, the American authorities might never have used such a weapon against the 750,000 Japanese who ultimately became its victims."

Dr. Hida says that while treating the terribly mangled and burned victims, "My eyes were ready to overflow with tears. I spoke to myself and bit my lip so that I would not cry. If I had cried, I would have lost my courage to keep standing and working, treating dying victims of Hiroshima."

On p.433, Hiroshima's Shadows, Kensaburo Oe declares, "From the instant the atomic bomb exploded, it became the symbol of all human evil; it was a savagely primitive demon and most modern curse.... My nightmare stems from a suspicion that a 'certain trust in human strength' or 'humanism' flashed across the minds of American intellectuals who decided upon the project that concluded with the dropping of the bomb on Hiroshima."

In the introduction to Hiroshima's Shadows, we find that "One of the myths of Hiroshima is that the inhabitants were warned by leaflets that an atomic bomb would be dropped. The leaflets Leonard Nadler and William P. Jones recall seeing in the Hiroshima Museum in 1960 and 1970 were dropped after the bombing. This happened because the President's Interim Committee on the Atomic Bomb decided on May 31 'that we could not give the Japanese any warning'. Furthermore, the decision to drop 'atomic' leaflets on Japanese cities was not made until August 7, the day after the Hiroshima bombing. They were not dropped until August 10, after Nagasaki had been bombed. We can say that the residents of Hiroshima received no advance warning about the use of the atomic bomb. On June 1, 1945, a formal and official decision was taken during a meeting of the so-called Interim Committee not to warn the populations of the specific target cities. James Byrnes and Oppenheimer insisted that the bombs must be used without prior warning."

"Closely linked to the question of whether a warning of an atomic bomb attack was given to the civilian populations of the target cities is the third 'article of fifth' that underpins the American legend of Hiroshima; the belief that Hiroshima and Nagasaki were military targets. The Headquarters of the Japanese Second army were located in Hiroshima and approximately 20,000 men—of which about half, or 10,000 died in the attack. In Nagasaki, there were about 150 deaths among military personnel in the city. Thus, between the two cities, 4.4% of the total death toll was made up of military personnel. In short, more than 95% of the casualties were civilians."

On p.39 of Hiroshima's Shadows we find that (at Hiroshima) "strictly military damage was insignificant." How are we to reconcile this statement with Harry Truman's vainglorious boast in Off The Record; the Private Papers of Harry S. Truman Harper, 1980, p.304, "In 1945 I had ordered the Atomic Bomb dropped on Japan at two places devoted almost exclusively to war production." In fact, many thousands of the Hiroshima casualties were children sitting in their classrooms.

The bomb was dropped because (p.35) "The Manhattan Project's managers were lobbying to use the atomic bomb. Byrnes sat in on these meetings. Maj. Gen. Groves seems to have been the author of the claim that the use of the bomb would save a million American lives—a figure in the realm of fantasy."

Truman himself variously stated that the use of the use of the atomic bomb saved "a quarter of a million American lives", a "half-million American lives", and finally settled on the Gen. Groves figure of "a million American lives saved."

Meanwhile (p.64) William L. Laurence, who was writing for the New York Times at full salary while also receiving a full salary from the War Department as the "public relations agent for the atomic bomb" published several stories in the New York Times denying that there had been any radiation effects on the victims of the Hiroshima bombing (Sept. 5, 1945 et seq.) in which he quotes General Groves' indignant comment, "The Japanese are still continuing their propaganda aimed at creating the impression we won the war unfairly and thus attempting to create sympathy for themselves."

(p.66) "The Legation of Switzerland on August 11, 1945 forwarded from Tokyo the following memorandum to the State Department (which sat on it for twenty-five years before finally releasing it): 'The Legation of Switzerland has received a communication from the Japanese Government.' On August 6, 1945, American airplanes released on the residential district of the town of Hiroshima, bombs of a new type, killing and injuring in one second a large number of civilians and destroying a great part of the town. Not only is the city of Hiroshima a provincial town without any protection or special military installations of any kind, but also none of the neighboring regions or towns constitutes a military objective."

The introduction to Hiroshima's Shadows concludes that (p.lxvii) "The claim that an invasion of the Japanese home islands was necessary without the use of the atomic bombs is untrue. The claim that an 'atomic warning' was given to the populace of Hiroshima is untrue. And the claim that both cities were key military targets is untrue."

A PILOT'S STORY

Corroboration of these statements is found in the remarkable record of Ellsworth Torrey Carrington, "Reflections of a Hiroshima Pilot". (p.9) "As part of the Hiroshima atomic battle plan my B-29 (named Jabbitt III, Captain John Abbott Wilson's third war plane) flew the weather observation mission over the secondary target of Kokura on August 6, 1945." (p.10) "After the first bomb was dropped, the atom bomb command was very fearful that Japan might surrender before we could drop the second bomb, so our people worked around the clock, 24-hours-a-day to avoid such a misfortune." This is, of course, satire on Carrington's part. (p.13) "in city after city all over the face of Japan (except for our cities spared because reserved for atomic holocaust) they ignited the most terrible firestorms in history with very light losses (of B-29s). Sometimes the heat from these firestorms was so intense that later waves of B-29s were caught by updrafts strong enough to loft them upwards from 4 or 5,000 feet all the way up to 8 or 10,000 feet. The major told us that the fire-bombing of Japan had proven successful far beyond anything they had imagined possible and that the 20th Air Force was running out of cities to burn. Already there were no longer (as of the first week in June 1945) any target cities left that were worth the attention of more than 50 B-29s, and on a big day, we could send up as many as 450 planes!" "The totality of the devastation in Japan was extraordinary, and this was matched by the near-totality of Japan's defenselessness." (as of June 1, 1945, before the atomic bombs were dropped.) (p.14) "The Truman government censored and controlled all the war information that was allowed to reach the public, and of course, Truman had a vested interest in obscuring the truth so as to surreptitiously prolong the war and be politically able to use the atom bomb. Regarding the second element of the Roosevelt-Truman atomic Cold War strategy of deceiving the public into believing that Japan was still militarily viable in the spring and summer of 1945, the centerpiece was the terribly expensive and criminally unnecessary campaign against Okinawa.

Carrington quotes Admiral William D. Leahy, p. 245, I Was There, McGraw Hill: "A large part of the Japanese Navy was already on the bottom of the sea. The combined Navy surface and air force action even by this time had forced Japan into a position that made her early surrender inevitable. None of us then knew the potentialities of the atomic bomb, but it was my opinion, and I urged it strongly on the Joint Chiefs, that no major land invasion of the Japanese mainland was necessary to win the war. The JCS did order the preparation of plans for an invasion, but the invasion itself was never authorized."

Thus Truman, urged on by General Groves, claims that "a million American lives were saved" by the use of the atomic bomb, when no invasion had ever been authorized, and was not in the cards. Carrington continues, p.16, "The monstrous truth is that the timing of the Okinawa campaign was exclusively related to the early August timetable of the atomic bomb. J'accuse! I accuse Presidents Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman of deliberately committing war crimes against the American people for the sole purpose of helping set the stage for the criminally unnecessary use of atomic weapons on Japan."

Carrington further quotes Admiral Leahy, from I Was There, "It is my opinion that the use of this barbarous weapon at Hiroshima and Nagasaki was of no material assistance in our war against Japan. The Japanese were already defeated and ready to surrender because of the effective sea blockade and the successful bombing with conventional weapons."

Carrington concludes, p.22, "Truman's wanton use of atomic weapons left the American people feeling dramatically less secure after winning World War II than they had ever felt before, and these feelings of insecurity have been exploited by unscrupulous Cold War Machine Politicians ever since." As Senator Vandenberg said, "We have to scare the hell out of 'em" in order to browbeat the American people into paying heavy taxes to support the Cold War.

DID THE ATOMIC BOMB WIN THE WAR AGAINST JAPAN?

Admiral William Leahy also stated in I Was There, "My own feeling is that being the first to use it (the atomic bomb) we had adopted an ethical standard common to the Barbarism of the Dark Ages. I was not taught to make war in that fashion, and wars cannot be won by destroying women and children."

Gar Alperowitz notes, p.16, "On May 5, May 12 and June 7, the Office of Strategic Services (our intelligence operation), reported Japan was considering capitulation. Further messages came on May 18, July 7, July 13 and July 16."

Alperowitz points out, p.36, "The standing United States demand for 'unconditional surrender' directly threatened not only the person of the Emperor but such central tenets of Japanese culture as well."

Alperowitz also quotes General Curtis LeMay, chief of the Air Forces, p.334, "The war would have been over in two weeks without the Russians entering and without the atomic bomb. PRESS INQUIRY: You mean that, sir? Without the Russians and without the atomic bomb? LeMay: The atomic bomb had nothing to do with the end of the war at all." September 29, 1945, statement.

THE NAGASAKI BOMB

When the Air Force dropped the atomic bomb on Nagasaki, with William Laurence riding in the co-pilot's seat of the B-29, pretending to be Dr. Strangelove, here again the principal target was a Catholic church. P.93, The Fall Of Japan, by William Craig, Dial, NY, 1967, "the roof and masonry of the Catholic cathedral fell on the kneeling worshippers. All of them died." This church has now been rebuilt, and is a prominent feature of the Nagasaki tour.

After the terror bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, the victorious Allies moved promptly to try Japanese officials for their "war crimes". From 1945-51 several thousand Japanese military men were found guilty of war crimes by an International Military Tribunal which met in Tokyo from 1946 to 1948. Twenty-eight Japanese military and civilian leaders were accused of having engaged in conspiracy to commit atrocities. The dissenting member of the Tokyo tribunal, Judge Radhabinod of India, dismissed the charge that Japanese leaders had conspired to commit atrocities, stating that a stronger case might be made against the victors, because the decision to use the atomic bomb resulted in indiscriminate murder.

A very popular movie in Japan today is Pride, The Fateful Moment, which shows Prime Minister General Hideki Tojo in a favorable light. With six others, he was hanged in 1968 as a war criminal. During his trial, his lawyers stated to the International Tribunal for the Far East, the Asian version of Nuremberg Trials, that Tojo's war crimes could not begin to approach the dropping of the atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki. The prosecutors immediately objected, and censored their statements. That was the last time there was any official recognition of the atomic bomb massacres in Japan. Japanese officials have been effectively prevented from taking any stand on this matter because the American military occupation, which officially ended in 1952 with the Treaty with Japan, was quietly continued. Today, 49,000 American troops are still stationed in Japan, and there is no public discussion of the crimes of Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

AMERICAN MILITARY AUTHORITIES SAY ATOMIC BOMB UNNECESSARY

The most authoritative Air Force unit during World War II was the U.S. Strategic Bombing Survey, which selected targets on the basis of need, and which analyzed the results for future missions. In Hiroshima's Shadow, the U.S. Strategic Bombing Survey report of July 1, 1946 states, "The Hiroshima and Nagasaki atomic bombs did not defeat Japan, nor by the testimony of the enemy leaders who ended the war did they persuade Japan to accept unconditional surrender. The Emperor, the lord privy seal, the prime minister, the foreign minister, and the navy minister had decided as early as May 1945 that the war should be ended even if it meant acceptance of defeat on allied terms.... It is the Survey's opinion that certainly prior to December 1, 1945 and in all probability prior to November 1, 1945, Japan would have surrendered even if the atomic bombs had not been dropped and even if no invasion had been planned or contemplated."

Both military, political and religious leaders spoke out against the atomic bombing of Japanese civilians. The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America issued a formal statement in March 1946 (cited by Gar Alperowitz):

"The surprise bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki are morally indefensible. Both bombings must be judged to have been unnecessary for winning the war. As the power that first used the atomic bomb under these circumstances, we have sinned grievously against the laws of God and against the people of Japan.”—Commission on the Relation of the Church to the War in the Light of the Christian Faith.

On p.438, Gar Alperowitz quotes James M. Gillis, editor of Catholic World, “I would call it a crime were it not that the word ‘crime’ implies sin, and sin requires a consciousness of guilt. The action taken by the United States government was in defiance of every sentiment and every conviction upon which our civilization is based.”

One of the most vociferous critics of the atomic bombings was David Lawrence, founder and editor of U.S. News and World Report. He signed a number of stinging editorials, the first on August 17, 1945.

“Military necessity will be our constant cry in answer to criticism, but it will never erase from our minds the simple truth, that we, of all civilized nations, though hesitating to use poison gas, did not hesitate to employ the most destructive weapon of all times indiscriminately against men, women and children.” On October 5, Lawrence continued his attack, “The United States should be the first to condemn the atomic bomb and apologize for its use against Japan. Spokesmen for the Army Air Forces said it wasn’t necessary and that the war had been won already. Competent testimony exists to prove that Japan was seeking to surrender many weeks before the atomic bomb came.” On November 23, Lawrence wrote, “The truth is we are guilty. Our conscience as a nation must trouble us. We must confess our sin. We have used a horrible weapon to asphyxiate and cremate more than 100,000 men, women and children in a sort of super-lethal gas chamber—and all this in a war already won or which spokesman for our Air Forces tell us we could have readily won without the atomic bomb. We ought, therefore, to apologize in unequivocal terms at once to the whole world for our misuse of the atomic bomb.”

David Lawrence was an avowed conservative, a successful businessman, who knew eleven presidents of the United States intimately, and was awarded the Medal of Freedom by President Richard M. Nixon, April 22, 1970.

ANOTHER EISENHOWER SPEAKS

Although Eisenhower never changed his opinion of the use of the atomic bomb, during his presidency he repeatedly voiced his opinion, as quoted by Steve Neal, The Eisenhowers Doubleday, 1978. P.225, “Ike would never lose his scepticism of the weapon and later referred to it as a ‘hellish contrivance’.”

His brother, Milton Eisenhower, a prominent educator, was even more vocal on this subject. As quoted by Gar Alperowitz, p.358, Milton Eisenhower said, “Our employment of this new force at Hiroshima and Nagasaki was a supreme provocation to other nations, especially the Soviet Union. Moreover, its use violated the normal standards of warfare by wiping out entire populations, mostly civilians, in the target cities. Certainly what happened at Hiroshima and Nagasaki will forever be on the conscience of the American people.”

During his Presidency, Dwight Eisenhower tried to find peaceful uses for atomic energy. In The Eisenhower Diaries, p.261, we find that “The phrase ‘atoms for peace’ entered the lexicon of international affairs with a speech by Eisenhower before the United Nations December 8, 1953.” Control of atomic energy had now given the New World Order clique enormous power, and Eisenhower, in his farewell speech to the American people on leaving the Presidency In Review (Doubleday, 1969), on January 17, 1961, warned, “In the councils of government we must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence, whether sought or unsought, by the military-industrial complex. The potential for the disastrous rise of misplaced power exists and will persist.”

By failing to name the power behind the military-industrial complex, the international bankers, Eisenhower left the American people in the dark as to he was actually warning them against. To this day they do not understand what he was trying to say, that the international bankers, the Zionists and the Freemasons had formed an unholy alliance whose money and power could not be overcome by righteous citizens of the United States.

MACARTHUR’S WARNING

General Douglas MacArthur also tried to warn the American people of this threat, as quoted in American Caesar, by William Manchester, Little Brown, 1978, p.692, “In 1957, he lashed out at large Pentagon budgets. ‘Our government has kept us in a perpetual state of fear—kept us in a continuous stampede of patriotic fervor—with the cry of grave national emergency. Always there has been some terrible evil to gobble us up if we did not blindly rally behind it by furnishing the exorbitant funds demanded. Yet, in retrospect, these disasters seem never to have happened, seem never to have been quite real.’”

This was the restatement of Senator Vandenberg’s famous comment, “We have to scare the hell out of ‘em.”

THE NEW ATOMIC AGE

The scientists who had built the atomic bomb were gleeful when they received the news of its success at Hiroshima and Nagasaki. In the book, Robert Oppenheimer, Dark Prince, by Jack Rummel, 1992, we find, p.96, “Back in the United States the news of the bombing of Hiroshima was greeted with a mixture of relief, pride, joy, shock and sadness. Otto Frisch remembers the shouts of joy, ‘Hiroshima has been destroyed!’ ‘Many of my friends were rushing to the telephone to book tables at the La Fonda Hotel in Santa Fe in order to celebrate. Oppenheimer walked around “like a prizefighter, clasping his hands together above his head as he came to the podium.”’”

Oppenheimer had been a lifelong Communist. “He was heavily influenced by Soviet Communism”: A New Civilization, by Sidney and Beatrice Webb, the founders of Fabian Socialism in England. He became director of research at the newly formed U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, with his mentor, Bernard Baruch, serving as chairman. Oppenheimer continued his many Communist Party Associations; his wife was Kitty Peuning, widow of Joe Dallet, an American Communist who had been killed defending Communism with the notorious Lincoln Brigade in Spain. Because Oppenheimer was under Party discipline, the Party then ordered him to marry Kitty Peuning and make a home for her.

Baruch resigned from the Atomic Energy Commission to attend to his business interests.

He was replaced by Lewis Lichtenstein Strauss, of Kuhn, Loeb Co. Strauss was apprised of Oppenheimer’s many Communist associations, but he decided to overlook them until he found that Oppenheimer was sabotaging progress on developing the new and much more destructive hydrogen bomb. It seemed apparent that Oppenheimer was delaying the hydrogen bomb until the Soviet Union could get its own version on line. Furious at the betrayal, he asked Oppenheimer to resign as director of the Commission. Oppenheimer refused. Strauss then ordered that he be tried. A hearing was held from April 5 to May 6, 1954. After reviewing the results, the Atomic Energy Commission voted to strip Oppenheimer of his security clearance, ruling that he “possessed substantial defects of character and imprudent dangerous associations with known subversives”.

Oppenheimer retired to Princeton, where his mentor, Albert Einstein, presided over the Institute for Advanced Study, a think tank for refugee “geniuses”, financed by the Rothschilds through one of their many secret foundations. Oppenheimer was already a trustee of the Institute, where he remained until his death in 1966.

THE REBIRTH OF ISRAEL

Einstein considered the atomic age merely as a stage for the rebirth of Israel. On p.760 of Einstein; His Life And Times we find that Abba Eban, the Israeli Ambassador, came to his home with the Israeli consul, Reuben Dafni. He later wrote, “Professor Einstein told me that he saw the rebirth of Israel as one of the few political acts in his lifetime which had an essential moral quality. He believed that the conscience of the world should, therefore, be involved in Israel’s preservation.” by Ronald W. Clarke, Avon Books 1971.

On March 1, 1946, Army Air Force Contract No. MX-791 was signed, creating the RAND Corporation as an official think tank, defining Project RAND as “a continuing program of scientific study and research on the broad subject of air warfare with the object of recommending to the Air Force preferred methods of techniques and instrumentalities for this purpose.” On May 14, 1948, RAND Corporation funding was taken over by H. Rowan Gaither, head of the Ford Foundation. This was done because the Air Force had sole control of the atomic bomb, RAND Corp. developed the Air Force and atomic bomb program for the Cold War, with the Strategic Air Command, the missile program, and many other elements of the “terror strategy”. It became a billion dollar game for these scientists, with John von Neumann, their leading scientist, becoming world famous as the inventor of “game theory”, in which the United States and the Soviet Union engaged in a worldwide “game” to see which would be the first to attack the other with nuclear missiles. In the United States, the schools held daily bomb drills, with the children hiding under their desks. No one told them that thousands of schools children in Hiroshima had been incinerated in their classrooms; the desks offered no protection against nuclear weapons. The moral effect on the children was devastating. If they were to be vaporized in the next ten seconds, there seemed little reason to study, marry and have children, or prepare for a steady job. This demoralization through the nuclear weapons program is the undisclosed reason for the decline in public morality.

In 1987, Phyllis LaFarge published The Strangelove Legacy, The Impact Of The Nuclear Threat On Children, chronicling through extended research the moral devastation wreaked on the children by the daily threat of annihilation. She quotes Freeman Dyson, who stated the world has been divided into two worlds, the world of the warriors, and the world of the victims, the children. It was William L. Laurence, sitting in the co-pilot's seat of a B-29 over Nagasaki, and the children waiting to be vaporized below. This situation has not changed.

THE LEGAL ASPECTS OF NUCLEAR WARFARE

Because Japan was occupied by the U.S. Military in 1945, the Japanese Government was never allowed any opportunity to file any legal charges about the use of the atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki. Although Japanese leaders were tried and executed for "war crimes" no one was ever charged for the atomic bombings. It was not until 1996 that the World Court delivered an opinion on the use of nuclear weapons. (p.565, Hiroshima's Shadows) "In July 1996, the World court took a stand in its first formal opinion on the legality of nuclear weapons. Two years earlier, the United Nations had asked the Court for an advisory opinion. The General Assembly of the United Nations posed a single, yet profoundly basic, question for consideration. It the threat of use of nuclear weapons on any circumstances permitted under international law? For the first time, the world's preeminent judicial authority has considered the question of criminality vis-a-vis the use of a nuclear weapon, and, in doing so, it has come to the conclusion that the use of a nuclear weapon is 'unlawful'. It is also the Court's view that even the threat of the use of a nuclear weapon is illegal. Although there were differences concerning the implications of the right of self-defense provided by Article 51 of the U.N. Charter, ten of the fourteen judges hearing the case found the use of threat to use a nuclear weapon to be illegal on the basis of the existing canon of humanitarian law which governs the conduct of armed conflict. The judges based their opinion on more than a century of treatise and conventions that are collectively known as the 'Hague' and 'Geneva' laws."

Thus the Court ruled that nuclear weapons are illegal under the Hague and Geneva conventions, agreements which were in existence at the time of the Hiroshima and Nagasaki bombings. They were illegal then, and they are illegal now.

GANDHI SPEAKS

Among world leaders who spoke out about the United States' use of atomic weapons in Japan,

Mahatma Gandhi echoed the general climate of opinion. P.258, Hiroshima's Shadow: "The atomic bomb has deadened the finest feelings which have sustained mankind for ages. There used to be so-called laws of war which made it tolerable. Now we understand the naked truth. War knows no law except that of might. The atomic bomb brought an empty victory to the Allied armies. It has resulted for the time being in the soul of Japan being destroyed. What has happened to the soul of the destroying nation is yet too early to see. Truth needs to be repeated as long as there are men who do not believe it."

THE COURT OF INTERNATIONAL JUSTICE

Eustace C. Mullins,
Ezra Pound World Peace Foundation
Japanese-American Friendship Society and the People of Japan,

Plaintiffs,

v.

The United States Government,
Defendant.

The plaintiffs bring this action before the World Court of International Justice to resolve the following charges:

1. Defendant conspired to commit war crimes against the people of Japan during World War II.

2. Defendant conspired to commit atrocities against the people of Japan during World War II.

3. Defendant conspired to subsequently evade and cover up these crimes by militarily occupying the nation of Japan, effectively preventing the people of Japan from seeking legal recourse for the actions of defendant. Defendant continues to militarily occupy Japan today, with 49,999 troops stationed there, on the pretext that the Soviet Union might attack. This pretext ignores the geopolitical fact that the Soviet Union collapsed in 1989 and does not pose a threat to anyone.

4. Defendant conspired to commit crimes of genocide against the people of Japan, motivated by racial hatred and religious bigotry.

5. Defendant violated the Hague agreements and the Geneva Convention, as determined by the World Court in June 1996, by making war against civilians and inflicting millions of casualties by firebombing Japanese cities and the atomic bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki during World War II.

6. After committing these crimes, defendant conspired to cover up these crimes by issuing a number of false statements, denying war crimes, and distortions of fact to evade any punishment for these war crimes.

7. Defendant also conspired to conceal from the American people the circumstances behind the commission of these war crimes, that a small group of conspirators, refugees from Europe, came to the United States and infiltrated the government of the United States, and in total secrecy launched the project to manufacture an atomic bomb for use against Germany and Japan. At no time during this conspiracy were the people of the United States aware of what was taking place, nor consulted for their approval, in violation of republican principles and the Constitution of the United States.

8. Since World War II, defendant has conducted a worldwide program of atomic terrorism, called atomic diplomacy, to ensure that its program continues unabated, and without punishment.

9. Although Japan had been reduced to ashes by June 1945, defendant insisted that an invasion was necessary, while ignoring peace tenders from Japan since May 1945, and defendant further claimed that the American military would suffer one million war dead while invading Japan, and that it was necessary to drop the atomic bombs on Hiroshima, August 6, 1945, and Nagasaki, August 9, 1945. In fact, as Admiral William D. Leahy pointed out in his book, I Was There, "the invasion itself was never authorized.” General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Supreme Military Commander, Admiral William D. Leahy, Air force General Curtis LeMay, and many other American military leaders, made public statements that it was not necessary to drop the atomic bombs. Political considerations dictated that it be dropped on Japan, in order to test it on a living population, and, if possible, to “tally” a million or more victims with the bombs, for the purpose of postwar intimidation of all other nations.

10. The atomic bomb was the creation of a small group of European refugees, whose efforts to develop such a bomb in Europe had been indignantly rejected. Albert Einstein, the physicist, wrote a personal letter to President Franklin D. Roosevelt, August 2, 1939, recommending that this bomb be built by the United States. His letter was hand-delivered to Roosevelt by Alexander Sachs, a Wall Street speculator. The atomic bomb program was directed from behind the scenes by another Wall Street speculator, Bernard Baruch, an agent of the Rothschilds. Baruch selected Major General Leslie Groves as the director of the project, and J. Robert Oppenheimer as science director of the program. Baruch continued to issue directives throughout the program, insisting to Major General Groves that the city of Kyoto be the primary target of the atomic bombs. Military leaders opposed this selection, pointing out that Kyoto was the ancient capital of Japan, and a religious center with more than two hundred ancient temples. Hiroshima and Nagasaki were finally chosen, although neither of these cities offered a primary military target. Baruch continued to dictate decisions on the atomic bomb, through the President’s National Defense Research Committee, chaired by Baruch’s Washington representative, James F. Byrnes.

11. After the devastation of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, defendant perpetrated a number of outright falsehoods to avoid blame for these massacres of civilians. The first was that the inhabitants were warned by leaflets dropped over the city that an atomic bomb would be used. In fact, the leaflets were not dropped until August 10, after the bombs had exploded. The President’s Committee had resolved on May 31, 1945 that “we could not give the Japanese any warning.” The second falsehood was that an invasion of Japan would be necessary if the atomic bomb was not used; this would cost a million American lives. Many leading American military authorities state this is absolutely false. The third falsehood was that both cities were “key military targets”. President Truman boasted in his private papers that “in 1945 I had ordered the atomic bomb dropped on Japan at two places devoted almost exclusively to war production.”

In fact, more than 95% of the dead at Hiroshima and Nagasaki were civilians. Only 4.4% of the death toll was made up of military personnel. A fourth falsehood, printed in the New York Times September 5, 1945, was that the victims had suffered no radiation damage. This story was written by William L. Laurence, the paid propagandist for the War Department with exclusive rights to material on the atomic bomb. Laurence quoted Major General Groves that the Japanese “are attempting to create sympathy for themselves”.

12. The Legation of Switzerland in Tokyo forwarded to the defendant a statement from the Japanese government, the complaint that “the city of Hiroshima is a provincial town without any protection or military installations of any kind, but also none of the neighboring regions or towns constitutes a military objective.” Observers on the scene recorded that “strictly military damage was insignificant.”

13. The most authoritative official United States unit during World War II was the U.S. Strategic Bombing Survey, which selected targets and analyzed the results of the bombings for the benefit of future missions. Their report of July 1, 1946 states, “the Hiroshima and Nagasaki bombs did not defeat Japan, nor by the testimony of the enemy leaders who ended the war did they persuade Japan to accept unconditional surrender. The Emperor, the lord privy seal, the prime minister, the foreign minister, and the navy minister had decided as early as May 1945 that the war should be ended even if it meant acceptance of defeat on allied terms... It is the Survey’s opinion that certainly prior to December 1, 1945, and in all probability prior to November 1, 1945, Japan would have surrendered even if the atomic bombs had not been dropped and even if no invasion had been planned or contemplated.”

14. This proves that the destruction of Hiroshima and Nagasaki were war crimes deliberately committed, with foreknowledge that it was not necessary to drop the atomic bombs on these two cities. As David Lawrence, founder and editor of U.S. News And World Report, wrote in his editorial November 23, 1945, “the truth is we are guilty. Our conscience as a nation must trouble us. We must confess our sin. We have used a horrible weapon to asphyxiate and cremate more than 100,000 men, women and children in a sort of super-lethal gas chamber—and all this in a war already won or which spokesman for our Air Forces tell us we could have readily won without the atomic bomb.”

15. The world leader and pacifist Mahatma Gandhi spoke sadly about the tragedy of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. “The atomic bomb has deadened the finest feelings which have sustained mankind for ages. There used to be so-called laws of war which made it tolerable. Now we understand the naked truth. War knows no law except that of might. The atomic bomb brought an empty victory to the Allied armies. It has resulted for the time being in the soul of Japan being destroyed. What has happened to the soul of the destroying nation is yet too early to see.”

16. Defendant is in violation of the Geneva Convention. Protocol 2, Scope of Application of Humanitarian Law, states: 1. “International humanitarian law is applicable to international armed conflicts. The international law of peace existing between the states concerned will thus be large superseded by the rules of international humanitarian law... A state can not, therefore, be allowed to invoke military necessity as a justification for upsetting that balance by departing from those rules.”

17. IV. Humanitarian Requirements and Military Necessity. “In war, a belligerent may apply only that amount and kind of force necessary to defeat the enemy. Acts of war are only permissible if they are directed against military objectives, if they are not likely to cause unnecessary suffering, and if they are not perfidious.” The bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki clearly falls outside the scope of this ruling, being civilian targets, the bombing caused unnecessary suffering, and defendant’s attempted justification was openly perfidious.

18. 129. If an act of war is not expressly prohibited by international agreements or customary law, this does not necessarily mean that it is actually permissible. The so-called Martens Clause, developed by the Livonian professor Friedrich von Martens (1845-1909) delegate of Tsar Nicholas II at the Hague Peace Conferences, which has been included in the Preamble to the 1907 Hague Convention IV and reaffirmed in the 1977 Additional Protocol I as stated below, will always be applicable. In cases not covered by the Protocol or by other international agreement, civilians and combatants remain under the protection and authority of the principles of international law derived from established custom, from the principles of humanity, and from the dictates of public conscience. (Artl., pars. 2 AP 1; see also Preamble pars. 4 AP II)

19. Protocol I—Part IV. Section i. “...the obligation of the Parties to the conflict to ‘at all times distinguish between the civilian population and combatants’.” Article 48—Basic rule, “the prohibition of ‘indiscriminate attacks’.” Article 51—Protection of the civilian population, paragraph 4, in particular “an attack by bombardment by any method or means which treats as a single military objective a number of clearly separated and distinct military objectives, located in a city, town, village or other area containing a similar concentration of civilians or civilian objects” (Article 51—Protection of the civilian population paragraph 5 (a) and “an attack which may be expected to cause incidental loss of civilian life, injury to civilians, damage to civilian objects, or a combination thereof, which would be excessive in relation to the concrete and direct military advantage anticipated (article 51—Protection of the civilian population, paragraph 5 [b]).

20. Protocol I—Part IV, Section 1. “Protection of civilians from arbitrary and oppressive enemy action, outlined in 1899, and later in 1907, was expressed in its most complete form in the Fourth Geneva Convention of 1949, which is now supplemented by this Protocol.

WHEREFORE, the plaintiffs respectfully move this Court to hear these charges of conspiracy to commit war crimes and atrocities, conspiracy to cover up their crimes, motivated by racial hatred and religious bigotry, and having intimidated the government of Japan and prevented them from seeking any redress for these crimes, and by defendant’s ongoing program of atomic terrorism, perfidious falsehoods, and their continuing conspiracy to cover up crimes of genocide, mass murder and undue suffering among their victims, and that the Court shall hear these charges, decide upon appropriate damages, and punishment for the offenders.

Respectfully submitted

7/16/98 #1 HATONN

BACK TO NON-THINKING

While I have you in a non-thinking mode I suggest we do another bit on George Bush and Twigs because what took place in Bahrain doesn't need thought—just a far-out sense of humor. Remember, a couple of days ago when we were writing about Bush and Bahrain and Harken (company)? Never mind, we'll just pick up and call the writing part 2 and move on.

[Quoting, Part 2: Chapter 10, IMMACULATE DECEPTION, by Russell Bowen:]

Under the agreement with Bahrain, Harken will drill up to six exploratory wells over a three-year period. If Harken finds oil, it would share the production revenues with the government of Bahrain for the next 35 years. Neither Harken nor the Bahraini government will disclose how those revenues would be divided.

Harken estimates the cost of drilling the first well will run between $12 million and $13 million. Analysts say the cost of drilling six wells could go as high as $50 million. For cash-strapped Harken, these costs presented a formidable obstacle. Once the deal with Bahrain was signed, therefore, Harken began looking for deep-pocketed partners to fund the project. [H: Wow!!]

At least 30 eligible suitors soon came forward, including five major oil companies. Harken eventually settled on Bass Enterprises Production Co., the oil and gas exploration and development arm of Fort Worth's billionaire Bass family. Bass Enterprises is headed by Sid and Lee Bass, sons of oil tycoon Perry Richardson Bass.

In July 1990, Harken announced that Bass Enterprises would finance the first three exploratory wells in Bahrain. After drilling the three initial wells, Bass could withdraw from the project, but would forfeit any revenues from oil production. If Bass funds an additional three wells, however, it would earn a 50 percent share of the profits Harken receives from its agreement with Bahrain. Current plans call for drilling to begin in the fall of 1992.

George W. Bush and the Bass brothers are not the only children of prominent parents involved in Harken. Harken director and former chairman Alan G. Quasha is the son of powerful Philippines lawyer William H. Quasha. Published accounts have documented connections between the senior Quasha and Australia's infamous Nugan-Hand bank. [H: No, not the same bank run badly and as the set up by and of Buddy Yates—Admiral, U.S.N.? Small world after all? This was among the first Bush endeavors to hurt a whole lot of people!]

Official Australian government investigations during the late 1970s and early 1980s revealed Nugan-Hand's involvement in drug-money laundering and ties to the U.S. military and intelligence community.

Nugan-Hand co-owner and vice-chairman, Michael John Hand, a Green Beret war hero and CIA operative, was also a "pal of dope-dealers and of retired and not-so-retired military intelligence officials", according to The Crimes of Patriots, by former Wall Street Journal reporter Jonathan Kwitny.

In 1977, the Australian Narcotics Bureau released a report detailing Nugan-Hand's involvement in a drug smuggling network that "exported some $3 billion [Australian] worth of heroin from Bangkok prior to June 1976", according to Australia's Sunday Pictorial. Moreover, according to a 1984 article in Mother Jones, former CIA officers and Iran-Contra figures Theodore Shackley and Thomas Clines, along with their subordinate Edwin Wilson (who is currently imprisoned for selling plastic explosives to Libya) used Nugan-Hand funds for a variety of covert operations, including the destabilization of the Australian government in 1975.

In April 1980, as Australian government investigators closed in on Nugan-Hand, the co-administrators of the bank's Manila offices, U.S. Gen. LeRoy J. Manor and British subject Wilfred Gregory, turned to their lawyer, William Quasha, for advice, according to Kwitny.

In addition to his duties with Nugan-Hand, Manor was chief of staff for the U.S. Pacific Command and the U.S. government liaison with Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos.

Gregory was Nugan-Hand's original representative in the Philippines and friend of Marcos' brother-in-law, Rudwig Rocka, whose family deposited $3.5 million in the bank, according to Kwitny.

Gregory has stated that Manor's decision to flee the Philippines to avoid punishment was inspired by a conversation with William Quasha. According to Kwitny, "Gregory says William Quasha 'arranged' for Manor to leave the country. He told me to go, too. He said, 'You could wind up in jail.' The three-star general, according to Gregory, left overnight."

In an interview with Kwitny, Quasha said that attorney-client privilege prevented him from divulging whether he told Manor and Gregory they faced possible imprisonment, or whether he advised Manor to leave the Philippines. "I'm not confirming or denying that I gave General Manor such advice," Quasha said.

Harken's familial ties to Nugan-Hand and, indirectly, the intelligence community, are reminiscent of another of the company's father-son relationships, that of George W. Bush and his father.

Harken, the Quashas and other key Harken figures have additional ties to Nugan-Hand through dealings with a Swiss bank. William Quasha's son Alan, the Harken director, is an attorney with the New York law firm of Quasha, Wessley & Schneider. He is also a director of North American Resources Limited (NAR), one of the principal stockholders in Harken.

According to Harken's proxy statement, NAR, which owns 20.24 percent of Harken's stock, is a partnership between Quasha's family and the Richemont Group Limited, a publicly traded Swiss company.

The Richemont Group is controlled by South-African billionaire Anthony E. "Anton" Rupert; NAR is also the parent company of Intercontinental Mining and Resources Limited (IMR), another major Harken shareholder, according to Harken's proxy statement. The proxy also states that IMR "and its affiliates" are major shareholders in two Harken subsidiaries, E-Z Serve Corp. and Texas Power Corp. In 1989, E-Z Serve sold 80 percent of its Hawaiian subsidiary, Aloha Petroleum, Ltd., to IMR for $12 million. IMR later sold its interest in Aloha.

Alan Quasha also sits on the board of Frontier Oil and Refining Co. of Denver, along with Harken President Mikel Faulkner. Like the Richemont Group, Frontier is headed by Anton Rupert. Last October, Harken and Frontier announced that E-Z Serve would purchase Frontier Oil Corp., a subsidiary of Frontier Oil and Refining. The Frontier group later backed out of the deal.

Harken is clearly not a typical small oil company. Its allure to some of the world's richest and most powerful men, and ability to secure potentially valuable concessions, perplex even veteran industry analysts. The company's complex web of financial and family relationships is considered extraordinary.

Meanwhile, a company that employs President Bush's brother Prescott as a consultant, stands to benefit if the President clears the way for the shipment of two satellites to China by the Hughes Aircraft Co. U.S. officials and foreign diplomats have said President Bush was expected to approve exporting the satellites. The action would represent one of the measures the Administration is taking to improve strained relations with China.

Asset Management International Financing & Settlement, Ltd., a New York firm for which Prescott Bush is a consultant, has a contract to provide communications connecting more than 2,000 professional and university offices in China.

Company executives said that the Hughes satellites would be “advantageous” for its project, which is a 50-50 joint venture with the Chinese government. In addition, Asset Management’s executive vice president said in an interview that the company could obtain more communications business in China if the satellites are launched.

Prescott Bush, an international businessman with extensive business contacts in Asia, has denied using his younger brother’s position to help him, and there is no substantial indication that the President’s foreign policy has been affected by his brother’s business dealings.

White House Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater said both the President and his brother were not aware of any direct relationship between Asset Management’s business activities and Hughes Aircraft, which is supplying the satellites.

“I talked to the President, and he said he is unaware of any relationship or any activity involving Hughes Aircraft,” Fitzwater said. “Then I called Prescott, and he also was unaware of any association involving Hughes Aircraft.”

A U.S. diplomat, describing Prescott Bush’s dealings in China, said in an interview, “He was smart enough not to mention his brother’s name, and the Chinese were smart enough to make the connection.”

President Bush, who headed the U.S. mission in China in the mid-1970s, sent National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft and Deputy Secretary of State Lawrence S. Eagleburger to Beijing, to prevent China from drifting into isolation as a result of international outrage over the June 3-4 massacre of pro-democracy demonstrators.

The overture brought criticism on Capitol Hill, where Democrats accused the President of moving too swiftly without concessions from the Chinese. Last June, in response to congressional pressure, Bush imposed sanctions against China, including a ban on the sale or export of equipment with possible military uses. Last fall, Congress enacted a provision that specifically banned the export of satellites to China unless the President granted a waiver “in the national interest”.

Scowcroft’s trip to Beijing was the latest and most dramatic step by the Administration to ease the impact of the restrictions. If Bush approves exporting the Hughes satellites to China, it could heighten the controversy in Congress.

Los Angeles-based Hughes Aircraft has been seeking final approval from the White House to sell two of its communications satellites, one to an Australian state-owned company called Ausat and the other to Hong Kong consortium called Asiasat. Both satellites would be launched on Chinese rockets in China’s Sichuan province. The satellites are designed to provide vital communications links across Asia and Australia and would be a boon to the joint venture between the Chinese government and Asset Management, an international financial-services company.

Company records list Prescott Bush as a member of its senior advisory board, which includes retired Admiral Elmo R. Zumwalt, former chief of the Navy. An executive vice president of Prescott Bush & Co. also is a director of Asset Management, according to the records.

[H: So even to you who never think, it should be obvious that this was prior to 1992 elections. And, you continue to blame Billy Zipper for things already structured, in position, and working before he got on board more than an in-house intern. I trust, without thinking, you can see WHY it is imperative to get Bush Jr. elected this next go-around to finalize the take-over of this New World Order of the Bushes and global wealth.]

[END OF QUOTING]

Don’t close your TA [Thinking Anonymous] meeting yet, but we have a meeting regarding the Federal FDA and a few other things to attend. My people are ready to stop EVERYTHING and if you wish to have any business at all—LEAVE US OUT OF IT and move the operations to LAS VEGAS, please.

I have never seen so many people talking about things of which they know NOTHING nor who can shut up long enough to even hear what the questions are.

We have no group or gathering or ANYTHING here and yet for two hours Channel 17 came and interviewed Rick and Ed about the “Phoenix Group”. THERE IS NO PHOENIX GROUP—LEASTWISE, NOT HERE AND NOT WITH US. Now they want to come and do this “nice” interview with Doris and E.J. Ekker? WHAT FOR? Could this be because of the anticipated “Pilgrimage” of some kind to Tehachapi in August? What is this, readers? Doris and E.J. don’t even go to the store in this town any more, just to be left alone, so why in the world would anyone give interviews to anyone? Anyone can do anything they want to do and do it wherever you want to do it—but confound it—GET YOURSELF TOGETHER AND STOP THIS CRAP. Someone WE never heard of is also up for an interview. We have never even heard the man’s name—but he seems to be a friend of someone who just happened to come here and decided he was somehow supposed to stay. Forget it, readers, because as of today, I have had my fill—and beyond.

What is this that when you know nothing about much of anything you think you have to yap? Is there something wrong with “I don’t know”? And why do journalists and representatives from anywhere—ALWAYS LIE? You people passed the level of Big Brother and Orwell’s 1984 in 1984! Wake up! I don’t expect you to THINK, but never mind dragging us into the space-gap between your ears.

Since I am interrupting in mid thought—please try to remember that we were talking about Mr. Bush. Thank you. Salu.

[QUOTING, IMMACULATE DECEPTION by Russell S. Bowen, 1991—Continuing on with

Chapter 10:]

BUSHES AND TWIGS IN CHINA AND—EVERYWHERE ELSE

In addition to Bush’s role as an adviser, Asset Management Executive Vice President Stanley B. Scheinman said the President’s brother is a paid consultant who helps the firm in Asia, including arranging a recent $5 million investment in the company by a Japanese firm. “He was instrumental in assisting us and introducing us to the Japanese investors,” said Scheinman.

Last September, Prescott Bush swung through Asia and Beijing, meeting with Chinese officials and potential investment partners. At that time, he told the Wall Street Journal that he was representing Asset Management on several projects, including the satellite-linked network inside China. He did not mention then that Asset Management stood to gain from the pending export of satellites to China. He did say, however, that he had not benefited from his brother’s position.

“There’s no conflict of interest,” he said. “This is something that has been going on for years.” But he conceded, “It doesn’t hurt that my brother is the President of the United States.”

Asset Management’s joint venture with the Chinese government calls for a computer-based communications network linking 2,246 offices of scientists, physicians, engineers and other professionals within China to the outside world, according to Richard Wall who negotiated the deal. He said existing technology could link many offices within China, but he said a satellite is required for the vital connection to research centers and universities around the world.

Wall said that China has a domestic satellite in space that could handle the outside link, but he acknowledged that the Hughes satellites would offer a better communications link. “The Hughes satellites offer economies and certain efficiencies,” Wall said.

Wall and Scheinman acknowledged Asset Management has an indirect involvement with Hughes, which they declined to discuss, that could lead to additional business in China if the satellites are launched. “We are not directly involved, but some people we are working with are discussing needs in communication in China,” said Scheinman.

This is not Prescott Bush’s only business venture in China that could be affected by an easing of sanctions.

Through his private company, the President’s brother is involved in at least two separate ventures in Shanghai. Prescott Bush visited Shanghai and Beijing two or three times a year in the mid-to-late 1980s, the Los Angeles Times reported.

Someone placed a telephone call from Washington, D.C., in October 1988 ordering a Savings & Loan field regulator in Colorado to wait two months until after Election Day to close the failing Silverado Thrift in Denver where candidate George Bush’s son Neil had been a director, the Washington Post reported. [H: George Green claims he was present for some of those meetings as he was, he claimed, a major “Developer”.]

Kermit Mowbray, the former top regional S&L regulator for Colorado, told the House Banking Committee that on telephoned orders from his Washington bosses, he delayed issuing the takeover from Silverado until the day after Bush was elected president. Mowbray testified that field regulators had wanted Silverado seized immediately. He couldn't remember who called him. Federal regulators finally seized Silverado on Dec. 9.

M. Danny Wall, the nation's chief thrift regulator from 1987 to 1989, couldn't recall making such a phone call. Neither could his top aides when questioned by the staff of the House Banking Committee. The call spared the Republicans the political embarrassment of an election-eve shutdown of an S&L tie to the White House. [H: Please pay attention to all this hanky-pank because it is happening around the globe—AGAIN—only now called "Derivatives".]

The financial affairs of the close-knit Bush family is politics mixed with business—commercial and intelligence. Investigations of the business relationships of Neil and Jeb Bush and of the oil-business of George Bush before he went into politics full time in 1966 produce connections to the world of intelligence.

National Thrift News, the bible of the S&L industry, reported in February 1989, in a story curiously ignored by the national media, that a former regulator at the Federal Home Loan

Board of Topeka (which had supervisory authority over the Denver thrift where Neil Bush was a director) said "political considerations" kept regulators from scrutinizing Silverado because it involved financial maneuvering with two major donors to the Republican Party.

One of Silverado's big borrowers, Larry Mizel, raised $1 million for the GOP at the 1986 Colorado luncheon attended by President Reagan. Another major borrower, Kenneth Good, contributed $100,000 to President Bush's campaign in 1988. This is the same Kenneth Good who made the younger Bush a $100,000 "non-repayable" loan.

The retired federal regulator, James Moroney, said that the connections of "politically powerful people" with Silverado led federal examiners to adopt "a different regulatory methodology that amounted to preferential treatment" in allowing questionable loans to go unchallenged.

Intelligence activities surround four of the five major borrowers from Neil Bush's Silverado. Pete Brewton of the Houston Post reported CIA and organized crime links to 22 failed S&Ls. Four of Silverado's largest borrowers had ties to convicted Louisiana organized-crime figure Herman K. Beebe and to an alleged CIA money launderer, both involved in the collapse of numerous Texas S&Ls. Another Silverado borrower was involved in arming the Contras and was the business partner of a man who took part in CIA assassination attempts on Fidel Castro's life.

Well-liked and well-connected in Washington, D.C., and Florida, John Ellis "Jeb" Bush has a reputation as a "Mr. Fix-It" inside the Cuban-American community of Miami. The President's bilingual son has business and political ties to members of that community active in CIA-support of the Contras. This suggests Bush is tied into a number of people under federal indictment, with Bush himself vulnerable to ethical if not prosecutorial scrutiny.

Jeb, former Dade County (Fla.) Republican Party chairman and (until his resignation in 1988) the state's Secretary of Commerce, is drawing scrutiny for his "informal" lobbying for Miguel Recarey, Jr., a former high-powered Republican fund-raiser. Political contributions by Recarey and his associates include a $20,000 donation to a George Bush political action committee in 1985-86.

Bush Realty, a partnership between Jeb and Miami entrepreneur Armando Condina, received a $75,000 fee to locate a new corporate headquarters from International Medical Centers, a health maintenance organization that received $1 billion in federal funds before it collapsed in 1987 amid fraud charges.

The company never closed a deal, despite the $75K fee. Bush called federal health

At Long Last! A Preparedness Publication You Can Trust

2/25/98 RICK MARTIN

As our long-time readers will know, we have been offering you helpful tips for overall preparedness, i.e., food storage, grains, health products and the like, for some time now. We have been keeping an eye out for years for ONE preparedness book that we could fully stand behind, and we have (at last) found it. The name of the book is called Making The Best Of Basics—Family Preparedness Handbook by James Talmage Stevens. And YES, you may now order the book directly from PHOENIX SOURCE DISTRIBUTORS (800) 800-5565. The cost for the book is $19.95 plus $3.95 for shipping and handling in the U.S. Canadian orders please add $7.67 shipping and handling for 1 book and $13.84 for 2 books. Please call for rates on 3 or more.

If you have made any efforts at food or seed storage, this book contains a wealth of useful and easy-to-access information and charts. At the end of the book is a listing, by state, of preparedness resources.

If ever there was a PRACTICAL guide to emergency preparations, this is it.

Just for the record, this is NOT a new book—just new to us. This book is now in its 10th printing, with 350,000 copies sold. It was FIRST published way back in 1974. Well, I guess it's better we found out about this one late than never and for that we are grateful.

officials to steer millions of dollars to the company headed by Miguel Recarey, Jr., a Cuban-American who had business connections to the late mob boss Santo Trafficante, Jr.

Recarey's company, International Medical Centers (IMC) Inc., the nation's largest health maintenance organization (HMO), eventually collapsed, and federal investigators are still trying to figure out what happened to the $1 billion in federal funds the firm received. Recarey fled the country in 1987 amid federal labor-racketeering, bribery and wiretapping charges. An unknown number of Medicare patients were denied services because of the misuse of federal funds.

After the collapse of International Medical Centers, press reports linked the HMO to the Contra supply network. Allegations were made that Medicare funds had been diverted from Recarey's operation to the Contras, at the expense of elderly Floridians.

Federal officials called such allegations groundless, but it was well known that Jeb Bush was a Contra supporter. According to an investigation by the Wall Street Journal, Contra soldiers were actually treated at IMC medical group facilities. At that time a 50-50 rule limiting Medicare patients went into effect.

Meanwhile, Jeb Bush, had a deal in the works. Jeb had been engaged by Recarey's IMC to relocate its Miami headquarters. Jeb's firm, Bush Realty, stood to collect a quarter of a million dollars.

But IMC was having trouble. Almost from the day it opened, patients, doctors, and hospitals had been complaining that IMC wasn't paying its bills. It was getting bad publicity, including allegations of the company's insolvency.

At the time, Jeb Bush was Dade County Republican Party chairman, not a governmental official. The Florida G.O.P. had floated his name as a potential congressional candidate, but Jeb said he was more interested in making big bucks. "I'd like to be very wealthy," he said, "and I'll be glad to let you know when I think I've reached my goal..." [H: Hummmnn—!]

At about the same time Jeb Bush began doing business with IMC, a $12 million real estate deal.

On August 10, C. McClain Haddow was promoted at the Department of Health and Human Services. He had risen from chief of staff for Utah Senator Orrin Hatch to chief of staff for then HHS secretary Margaret Heckler. Now he had become acting administrator of the Health Care Financing Administration. Sixteen days later, he signed an expansion waiver of the 50-50 rule for Miguel Recarey's IMC.

Two years later, Haddow, testifying at a congressional hearing, said Jeb Bush had called Secretary Heckler to obtain the expansion waiver, that Heckler had approved the waiver, and that she had referred Jeb to Haddow. He also remembered Heckler telling him that she had received "input from the White House and from outside the government" on the waiver decision.

Haddow told Joe Cuomo that Jeb intervened twice, once prior to the initial (and less controversial) waiver, and once prior to the August expansion waiver, each time speaking first to Heckler, then to Haddow. Heckler, according to Haddow, had been "a critic of IMC", but she saw her future in Washington as tied to George Bush.

So when Jeb called, the secretary of HHS did an about-face. She thought "not bucking against the Vice President's son would enhance her political stock. She confided in me that she believed that she would be a viable vice-presidential contender on a Bush ticket in '88," Haddow said.

Haddow also says that Heckler discussed her talks with Jeb. On each occasion, Jeb contacted Haddow a few days later and "replayed the gist of the conversation consistent with what Heckler had told me". Haddow remembers speaking with Jeb at "some length" concerning the expansion-waiver decision, and hearing Jeb's "reasons why he felt it was important to do this".

Jeb Bush has acknowledged that he did help Recarey, as a personal favor. As to specifics, Bush's son has come down with Reaganitis. Jeb has said that he can't recall speaking with either Haddow or Heckler. Haddow, however, testified that he kept logs of his calls. Jeb has never been asked to testify.

According to the Journal report, former Reagan aide Lynn Nofziger (convicted in 1988 in an unrelated illegal lobbying case) and former Reagan presidential campaign manager John Sears received approximately $400,000 and $300,000 respectively in lobbying fees from IMC and other Recarey-owned companies to assist in lobbying.

Recarey also ensured himself some high-powered public relations help when he retained Black, Manafort and Stone. That firm, which previously employed Bush campaign director Lee Atwater and several other Bush aides, also counts among its clientele the Bahamas and its leader, Lynden Oscar Pindling, who was being investigated for his alleged participation in cocaine trafficking.

After the waiver, IMC grew. Haddow also agreed to have Medicare stop monitoring IMC's progress toward the 50-50 limit. By 1986, IMC became so bloated with elderly enrollees that it was taking in $30 million from Medicare every month. Business was booming.

Jeb Bush, by his own admission, never once disclosed his financial ties to IMC. These ties were considerable. According to records released by Bush Realty, Jeb met with executives and representatives of IMC 41 times on their $12 million deal. Once the deal was sealed, Bush Realty stood to gain $250,000. [H: And this is the same Jeb who plans to be the next Governor of Florida like his brother George is Governor of Texas while planning to step right up to the Republican PRESIDENCY under "Daddy as a tutor" in the next major election, year 2000.]

On his failure to disclose, Jeb has simply said, "If I was asked about it, I would have, of course, told about it." Says Haddow: Obviously, if his father weren't Vice President, Jeb might not have been able to intervene at all. According to Haddow, the reason the secretary of Health and Human Services accepted Jeb's call was "because his name was Bush". It was also the reason she acted on it. Jeb didn't even have to ask. All he had to say was that he was calling for IMC. "I think anybody who understands the Washington power game would know that when the son of the Vice President calls, or makes a statement, he doesn't have to advertise what he wants." Such is the power of the office.

Haddow said Jeb Bush never asked him to change any rules, only that Recarey got a fair hearing on the 50-50 waiver request. Haddow said he made sure he contacted Heckler so she wouldn't be surprised by a call from Vice President Bush. Heckler, he said, asked for a reading on IMC, which he requested from the Health Department's inspector general's office. That reading, he said, raised no concerns about IMC.

Haddow also said he asked his former aide, Kevin Moley, to check IMC because of Jeb Bush's phone calls. Moley, he said, told him the Vice President's office was "very interested in helping IMC if possible". Heckler, he added, told him someone from the White House had contacted her on behalf of IMC.

"She then did a complete turnaround on IMC," he alleged, adding, "Heckler had her sights set on being Bush's vice president, and supported the waiver for IMC on the 50-50 rule."

Moley acknowledged he had received a call from Bush, but confirmed that he was asked only to give Recarey a fair hearing, not to change a policy. He added that Jeb's actions might have been "highly questionable on an ethical basis and showed bad judgement. It was not illegal." Neither Haddow nor Moley says Bush mentioned his financial connection to Recarey, and emphasized that it was not a legal requirement to do so.

Jeb Bush was asked what it's like to be the son of someone in the White House. Jeb compared himself to Ron Reagan, Jr. "There's a fine line," he said, "between using your father to seek personal gain and profit... and just going with the flow."

IMC service providers did not receive proper payment and patients complained of substandard care. After its problems became public, the firm's deteriorating financial condition forced a takeover by the state. Eventually declared insolvent, IMC was purchased in 1987 by the giant Louisville-based health group Humana, Inc., for $40 million.

According to Judi Lantz, a spokesperson for HHS, IMC received "nearly $30 million a month in prepaid Medicare payments from 1981-87". The Wall Street Journal reported that federal officials were sorting through a whopping $222 million in unpaid IMC billings. Lantz told the LA Weekly that the most recent HHS audit of IMC indicated the firm "routinely billed Medicare for unnecessary services".

The audit, she said, also listed nearly "$12 million in overpayments" which HHS would attempt to collect from any Recarey assets which could be seized. Federal investigators estimate that between 1981 and 1986, the HMO bilked the government of some $16 million, $11.9 million of which has never been recovered.

Hired by IMC after he left the Health Department, Haddow received $40,000 in consulting fees before his contract with IMC was terminated.

He was also convicted in an unrelated federal conflict-of-interest case in 1987 and imprisoned. The Journal reported that IMC also hired a dozen other department employees after they left HHS. They included Juan del Real, former general counsel at HHS, who joined IMC at a salary of $325,000 and a $40,000 car allowance, and his wife, Claire, a press aide who came on board at $130,000 and a $12,000 car allowance.

In press accounts Jeb Bush was quoted as saying he knew nothing of IMC's problems or any alleged illegal activities by Recarey. He also said he didn't remember calling either Heckler or Haddow, but did acknowledge making "one informal call" to Kevin Moley, another former HHS official, who later worked as a senior advance person for George Bush's campaign in 1988.

Since his parole Haddow returned to the health-care consulting business. He contradicts Jeb Bush's account of his efforts on behalf of IMC, saying, "Both Secretary Heckler and I received calls from Jeb Bush on behalf of Recarey in the fall of 1984." Jeb, he told the LA Weekly in 1988, wanted to make sure "I knew the rumors circulating about Recarey were blown out of proportion, that Recarey had strong community support, and had been a loyal supporter of administration policies."

Recarey was not the only future felon with whom Jeb Bush associated. He was also linked, through Florida party politics and a real-estate deal involving Recarey, to Camilo Padreda, the current Dade County Republican Party Finance Chairman. Padreda, who like Recarey is an avowed anti-communist and Contra supporter, was also an influential construction developer in Miami's Cuban-American community.

According to Newsday, Padreda is a target of a federal fraud investigation involving millions of dollars in loan guarantees and grants from the federal department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Miami FBI spokesperson Paul Miller acknowledged to the Weekly that the agency had cooperated in the HUD investigation of Padreda, but would not confirm or deny any investigation into Padreda's business dealings or association with Recarey, Jeb Bush, or any other lobbyist.

Padreda was indicted for embezzlement of funds from a Texas savings and loan once partially owned by Democratic vice-presidential nominee Lloyd Bentsen. The indictment, termed a "flawed case", was eventually dropped, reported Newsday.

In addition to Padreda, another wheeler-dealer in the Cuban-American financial community, Guillermo Hernandez Cartaya, was indicted in the bank case but never went to trial. Bush and Cartaya moved in the same circles, though no information about the relationship between them has come to light.

Cartaya, a veteran of the Bay of Pigs and a reputed money launderer, was convicted in Florida in 1981 of income tax evasion involving a company called World Finance Corporation. He was a close friend of Padreda.

Former assistant U.S. Attorney R. Jerome Sanford, who headed the investigation into Cartaya's operations in the mid-'70s, told the Weekly that he became so frustrated with "foot-dragging by his superiors in the Justice Department and apparent CIA intervention in the case" that he resigned. Sanford says other charges should have been forthcoming, but the investigation was "dropped after I left".

Sanford said he eventually filed a FOIA request for CIA documents relating to WFC. "They came back with a list of documents, but that's it. I never actually saw any, because the request was turned down on national security grounds. I did find out, however, that about a dozen or so World Corp. people worked for the CIA." George Bush was CIA Director at the time the agency intervened.

Colombian coffee magnate Alberto Duque Rodriguez was another of Jeb's business companions who could have stepped out of an episode of "Miami Vice", according to a Penthouse article entitled "Family Ties" by Joe Cuomo.

Jeb Bush had tried to free Cuban-American terrorist Juan Bosch, who was released to house arrest from Federal prison in Florida in 1988. Bosch was responsible for a 1980s bombing campaign against Cuban government property abroad, and was the architect of the 1976 mid-air bombing of a Cuban airliner that killed 73.

Bosch received funds for his terrorist activities from the World Finance Corporation, a Florida Company that was the subject of the largest narcotics smuggling investigation of the 1970s. The case was dropped because of CIA interference with the Justice Department on WFC's behalf. During the heyday of WFC's anti-Castro activities, George Bush was Director of the CIA (1976-77).

President Bush's all-out push for extending most-favored nation (MFN) trade status to communist China might be traced to his family interests in that country, and of the role of Israeli arms dealers. [H: Yes indeed, this is the SAME BUSH that joined with Bentsen, Baker III, North, et al., to kill Russell Herman and get the whole of the Contract 3392-181 which, by the way, he has never stopped using. That is how real the beautiful governmental debt IS! (!!!)]

The Bush family is involved in a major housing project in Shanghai, near the airport, to be rented or sold to foreigners doing business in China. The Aoki Corporation, controlled by the Bush family, is the Western partner. The President's brother, Prescott Bush, refused to respond to a Los Angeles Times inquiry on the subject.

Prescott Bush has also reportedly received $250,000 as a consultant to an American company establishing a communications network in China, Asset Management International Financing and Settlement Ltd. This company arranged for Hughes Aircraft Co., now a subsidiary of General Motors, to export three communications satellites to China. President Bush approved the export of the satellites. [H: Now, do you just suppose this is all coincidental stumbling around and falling into a helpless position? And what do you think the recent "China thing", along with General Motors strikes, etc., might have to do with cutting out all the opposition to the frying of Clinton?]

Bush, it should be recalled, headed the first U.S. diplomatic mission to Red China. [H: Go back and read this sentence again!]

Savings & Loans, once meant safety for depositors and dreams for borrowers. It became one of the obscene phrases of our generation. The financial scandal of this century continues to escalate.

Americans forgot about the S&L fiasco for a while. The Persian Gulf crises took the heat off Neil Bush, the President's son, up to his eyeballs in missing millions from Silverado Bank, one of the worst of the nation's failed savings and loans. It was a complete family affair; George Bush's oldest son, George, Jr., held an interest in an oil well in Bahrain.

While Americans cheered the war, government attorneys were settling the $200 million lawsuit brought against Neil Bush and his fellow officers and directors of Silverado.

By settling out of court for $49 million, much covered by insurance, important evidence and testimony will never be disclosed.

Charming, ambitious and immature, Neil Bush was the personal vehicle used by Denver businessmen.

The forces of greed sucked in Neil Bush. His presence on the board of directors of Silverado was the perfect ploy for the influence peddlers who wooed both political parties and power wherever they needed it.

Silverado's board of directors included a political trophy whose name repelled the approaches of inquiring regulators. Neil Bush was in business with Bill Walters and Ken Good, the largest borrowers and defaulters of Silverado money. Both men now say they are broke and can't pay back the money. Walters owes $106 million and Good $37 million. Neil voted to approve all their loans.

Neil told his family and friends that "I sleep soundly at night knowing I live an honest life." Bush appeared before the Office of Thrift Supervision at a hearing in Denver in September 1990. His testimony and courtroom demeanor before the administrative judge didn't do much to foster the "Mr. Perfect" name tag his siblings had given him.

[To be continued.]

And, you are going to DO IT AGAIN, aren't you, America? Salu.

"S&L POSTER BOY"

Pete Brewton, the Houston Post reporter who has covered the S&L crisis, links Silverado with nearly 30 other thrifts with possible connections to CIA operatives. He said, "Neil came off as a spoiled, petulant brat who apparently thinks the world owes him a wealthy living because of who his father is. He also uses the shtick of being naive and gullible to justify his not abiding by the same rules the rest of us have to."

Dubbed the "S&L Poster Boy" by angry taxpayers, Neil was the child of George and Barbara Bush least likely to stray. Unable to read properly, Neil was tutored by his mother for dyslexia, a relatively common learning disorder.

He went to Tulane University and earned a master's degree in Business Administration. Neil told the Congressional Banking Committee that he didn't understand all the complicated loan transactions at Silverado.

He claims that no laws were broken and that he had no conflicts of interest when serving on the board of Silverado. Neil's anger at being accused of a conflict of interest and his cavalier attitude regarding his responsibilities sharply contrasts with the remorse Colorado Taxpayers for Justice would like to see. At a protest outside

Neil's office at 410 17th St. in Denver's financial district, signs read, "What else lurks under the Bush's?" and "Bank Robbers Go To Jail!"

Mark Stevens, Denver businessman walking by the protest said, "Neil's a doofus, not a thief. But what the hell is a doofus doing on the board of a major S&L? It's hard to compare a 35-year-old dyslexic yuppie who's trying to climb the social ladder in Denver to guys like Walters and Good. It's clearly a case of mutual prostitution where Neil used Walters and Good and Silverado to further his career and they used him for his name and all the clout and cover that comes with it."

Neil's day in court in 1990 irritated the judge, who several times reprimanded Neil for his loud outbursts. When sparring with the government attorney Neil raised his voice to emphasize his indignance. At one point Neil was scolded for his comment about a question concerning Ken Good, "That's such an outrageous hypothetical, I don't think it's appropriate for me to respond." Neil was told by the judge that it wasn't his place to decide what was appropriate.

While Neil was singing his Silverado stanzas, Sharon Bush was shopping at the new Neiman-Marcus in the Cherry Creek Mall. After a full day of testimony, Neil joined his wife, waved at reporters, and with thumbs up climbed into a chauffeur-driven limousine.

The $200 million lawsuit never made it to trial. Rather than fight the charges of conflict of interest and negligence, the officers and directors of the $1 billion failure settled it out of court, silencing further disclosure. Ed Gray, former chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, who loudly told a deaf Washington audience of thrift abuse during the 1980s, said, "Neil Bush should be subjected to the same wheels of justice as any other American citizen of our country. The fact that his father is the most powerful man in the Western world shouldn't make any difference whatsoever."

Should it make any difference that his father was once the Director of the Central Intelligence Agency and an expert in covert activities?

Was there a conflict on Neil's part? Both Walters and Good made substantial donations of time and money to George Bush. Walters entertained Bush in his home in the early 1980s, hosting a black-tie Republican fund raiser benefitting the Reagan-Bush ticket. Good flew to Houston to celebrate with the Bush family after the 1988 election.

Before George Bush received the Republican nomination for President, he sent handwritten letters to each of his five children cautioning them to avoid even the appearance of any conflict of interest, no matter what opportunities they might sacrifice.

Jeb Bush spoke for his brothers and his sister Dorothy when he said, "The first thing we can do to help our Dad is not get into any trouble." Marvin Bush added that they should "avoid sleazeballs, people who have quick-fix solutions, people who want you because your name is Bush."

Neil left the board of Silverado a few months before the election saying he didn't want to create a conflict of interest. Neil was aware of the thrift's terminal condition. Three days before Neil resigned, Silverado executives feared a run by depositors and agreed to a consent letter, considered by bankers to be the last rung on the ladder before sudden death.

Regulator Kenneth Mobray, the principal supervisory agent of Silverado, can't recall who called him from Washington instructing him to delay the shutdown of Silverado until four weeks after the presidential election. While in Denver, Mobray was a frequent companion of Walters and Good, who were known to hold their liquor with the best of them.

Neil has said he "didn't break any laws", and that all the loans he voted for "were approved by the regulators". He apparently sees nothing wrong with his proposal of a $900,000 line of credit for Good for a joint oil venture in Argentina with his own company, JNB Exploration. He said Good's lawyer Norman Brownstein drafted the letter and Neil signed it. Neil didn't see anything wrong with failing to inform the board of Silverado that while Good was considering investing $3 million in Neil's oil company, Good was at the same time asking the board to absolve him of $8.5 million in debts. Neil Bush told the attorney for the Office of Thrift Supervision that he used the "Smith Smell Test" to determine if anyone was using him for his last name, and if he would be offered the same deals if his name were Smith (his wife's maiden name). BUT HIS NAME WAS BUSH AND HE USED IT WHENEVER HE NEEDED TO REMIND PEOPLE THAT HE WAS THE PRESIDENT'S SON.

A prominent Denver philanthropist who was an important business contact of Neil phoned him one morning and invited him to a dinner at the home of a mutual friend: "It will only cost you a few thousand and it's for Dad. All the guys from Silverado will be there. You'll really enjoy yourself."

The middle son of successful oilman George Bush wasn't a newcomer to proper political behavior. Neil and his siblings experienced life inside the Beltway and all the social pressure that went with it during George Bush's years in Congress and the CIA. Neil wanted to make it big in the oil business just as his father had. He moved his new bride to Denver to take advantage of the oil boom in 1980. Neil took a job with Amoco. The young Bush couple was embraced by Denver society. Sharon at once formed a partnership with the daughter of Denver Billionaire Marvin Davis, Nancy Davis Zarif. Neil played squash at the Denver Club and Sharon volunteered for Children's Hospital.

The young Bushes, attractive and eager to please, were Denver's political plums, the direct connection to Washington, where politics could provide the medicine Denver's ailing economy needed.

In 1983, Neil left Amoco. His former boss told friends that Neil quit because things weren't moving fast enough. With two associates from Amoco, James Judd and Evans Nash, Neil formed JNB Oil Exploration. Neil invested $100, Judd and Nash invested $50 each. The rest of the initial financing came in a $1.75-million loan from Cherry Creek National Bank and a personal investment of $150,000 from the bank's owner, Bill Walters. Ken Good invested $10,000 and agreed to become the funding partner of JNB.

Neil defended his JNB venture even though it ultimately lost money. A Denver petroleum professional who passed on the JNB opportunity said, "Judd and Nash were snake-oil peddlers who came to me to do some business. I don't know what put me off more, their geology or their suits."

By 1985, JNB had drilled several dry holes. That year Michael Wise, chairman of Silverado, asked Neil to join the board of directors. His employees called Wise, "Alfred E. Newman", the name of the smiling face on MAD Magazine.

He was close to Walters, who had mastered the system and convinced many Denverites that he was as unsinkable as Molly Brown. Neil had been doing business with Walters since 1983. By the time Neil was voting on his Silverado loans, Walters was the president of the Greater Denver Chamber of Commerce.

Not everyone in Denver knew Walters' tactics. A former business associate said that he provided prostitutes for out-of-state lenders and frequently sent couriers with payoffs to Aurora city officials in exchange for zoning variances.

Shotgun Willy's, an adult drinking establishment in Denver known for its flashy waitresses, was a favorite of Walters and his "good ol' boys" as they could always count on excellent service including private party rooms in the rear.

Intimates allege Walters was a heavy cocaine user. One of his top executives considered leaving the company as the drug problem began to get out of hand. Drugs and famous people weren't new to the Denver media. Westword, a Denver alternative newspaper, reported Neil Bush being referred to as the "godfather" of a drug dealer who kept Neil's photograph among his personal belongings. According to the Westword article, Neil let him know when "something was coming down".

Silverado borrower Ken Good was very proud of his relationship with Neil. One of Good's peers recalls him boasting, "Neil just called and I gave him another couple hundred thousand for some of his wells."

Steven Pizzo, co-author of Inside Job: The Looting of America's Savings and Loans with Mary Fricker and Paul Muolo, views the Bush-Walters-Good triangle as good business for Walters and Good. "Their theory was definitely 'a Bush in the hand'. If they abuse a financial institution and get the President's son to drive the getaway car, the Feds aren't likely to shoot. Why else would those guys be doing business with someone who poked 30 dry holes?"

Neil's relationships with Denver's fast crowd concerned Colorado Republican Committeeman Jim Nicholson so much that he went to Washington to warn George Bush.

Meanwhile, Neil completed the Silverado conflicts-of-interest disclosure form in June 1986 and didn't disclose his business relationship with Good or Walters. Bush neglected to tell of his annual $120,000 salary from JNB, or of $100,000 that he owed to Walters, who could have put a lien on his business at any time.

Neil admitted to being a go-between for Good and the Silverado board and that Good was his financial backer. He said that although he failed to properly disclose his relationships with Walters and Good, the board was aware they existed as "they were discussed at lunches and other occasions."

The son of a minister, Good was known as the flimflam man when he left Texas and came to Denver. His ownership of water rights on key parcels of land in the Denver area was compared by many real-estate professionals to legal blackmail. Good has 174 trust accounts in Colorado and 45 corporations in Florida.

Ken Good was dynamic, ahead of the times, and diversified in his business acumen. He lived in a $10 million, 24,000-square-foot house. As real estate in Denver began to stagnate, Good expanded to Florida in 1986. He purchased Gulfstream Land and Development in Plantation with borrowed funds.

Good brought Neil Bush and his attorney, Norman Brownstein, to the board of Gulfstream. Bush and Brownstein each collected $100,000 annually for serving. When Good purchased Gulfstream, the responsibilities to provide capital to Neil's oil company passed from Good to Gulfstream. Neil told the Office of Thrift Supervision court in Denver that Gulfstream had "the opportunity to invest".

The ubiquitous Brownstein of Brownstein, Farber, Hyatt & Madden is known as the consiglieri of Denver's real-estate developers. He represented Good, Walters, Silverado and MDC Holdings, a housing conglomerate with over 70 subsidiaries owned by Larry Mizel. Brownstein served on the board of MDC for several years and resigned last September, in the midst of investigations of alleged wrongdoing, to devote more attention to the practice of law.

Mizel has been an active Republican fund raiser and strong supporter of George Bush. MDC is accused of inflating its worth through phony transactions with Silverado. MDC expanded its holdings considerably in the 1980s with the help of Drexel Burnham Lambert's junk bonds. MDC is the parent company to Richmond Homes of Colorado which sold a $550,000 home to Sharon Bush.

Mizel suffered a brain tumor last year and was too sick to attend the Congressional Banking Committee's investigation of Silverado. However, he attended a luncheon a few weeks later seated with Neil Bush and Ken Good. [H: Have you ever noticed how many of the top Bush boys end up with terminal brain tumors or awful hearts which simply stop ticking?]

Before his luck ran out, Neil's income had risen to $250,000 per year. [H: And that was just what could be found.] His JNB salary was $120,000 per year, he received $100,000 for serving on the board of Gulfstream, and says he made "about $30,000 a year" for his duties at Silverado. A sharp drop in income could be one of the reasons the Bushes' neighbor, Fred Vierra, President of United Artists Entertainment (a subsidiary of Telecommunications, Inc.) loaned Sharon $125,000 against the Bush property.

Brownstein is close to the Gouletas family of Chicago, to junk bond king Michael Milken, to Charles Keating of failed Lincoln Savings and Loan and Ken Theygerson of the failed Imperial Savings of California. A former Drexel official said, "Brownstein was the strong liaison between junk bonds and government."

Brownstein, an acknowledged independent who supports both political parties, is referred to by Senator Edward Kennedy as "the 53rd Senator". Kennedy told reporters in the fall of 1990 that he always stays "with Norm when in Denver".

Brownstein vehemently denies ever subletting office space to Neil Bush or collecting any rent money from him. Carlos Lucero, an attorney from Alamosa, Colorado, who lost the Democratic bid for the U.S. Senate, sent one of his campaign aides to Brownstein's office in 1990. Workmen were feverishly scraping the name Neil Bush off the door of Brownstein's law office in the 410 17th Building as the aide approached.

Bush and Brownstein remained on the board of Gulfstream until February 1990, when Good threw in the towel, more than two years after Silverado had been seized by regulators. Good surrendered title to Gulfstream after the downslide of Florida real estate. While riding the short-lived high, one Florida developer recalls seeing Good, "with a drink in his hand all day and a different bimbo on his arm every couple of hours."

Guilt-free Neil told the Office of Thrift Supervision that he didn't see himself competing with Silverado for funds that Good controlled. He said his disclosure and his abstention from voting on Good transactions was "much more than necessary".

Neil doesn't see that his loyalties to Silverado and taxpayers' money could have been compromised when voting loans to Walters and Good. Neil's adamant self-defense doesn't sit well with seasoned Denver businessmen who watched the Silverado story unfold.

Medill Barnes, owner of Straight Creek Company, said the sympathy vote for Neil Bush goes nowhere with him: "the Silverado pirate ship had a willing participant. Neil was no hostage. He was a bonafide card-carrying member of the crew."

It was Silverado's chairman, Mike Wise, who invited Neil to the board. During his tenure at Silverado, Wise was known for his heavy solicitation of loans that required the borrower to obtain more money than needed, then invest in Silverado-preferred stock.

Wise dropped in without an appointment one day and asked Hal Ramsay, the executive partner of Vantex, a division of Vantage of Texas, if he wanted to borrow $50 million. When Wise explained that Ramsay had to pay five points up front, Ramsay burst out laughing and said, "Now, Mike, why in hell would I want to do a foolish thing like that? I've got better rates with my other lenders and I can't see spending all that interest over the years on the five points." He added, "But then, I never took out a loan I didn't intend to pay back."

John Madden, a national developer whose office buildings and art collection are among Denver's most notable, said it would have been easy to be a part of the Silverado syndrome of easy money. "I'm thankful I never fell for it." Madden was stung by Silverado instead. At a breakfast meeting of Denver businessmen, a Silverado-backed apartment renovation was proposed. Madden consented to a $1.5 million line of credit that Silverado could draw on if needed: "Just six months later they cashed my letter of credit. The project was built but not successful. It cost more to put up than it was worth. The developer left town and the project was left without enough income to service the mortgage. I went to Silverado and met with the number-two man and asked him why in hell did he make a crazy loan like that? He looked me straight in the eye and said, 'Because, Mr. Madden, you put up the $1.5 million and we figured you knew what you were doing.' They considered my money an enforcement! It was my fault for not doing my due diligence. It was stupid. If you believe the hype you get hooked. It was pure bullshit."

Money was available in Denver during the mid-1980s from Manufacturer's Hanover bank, Chase Manhattan Bank, Travelers Insurance and several Canadian lending institutions. Ramsay said quality product with good sponsorship could borrow at the normal lending rate at that time which was one half point over prime, with a half-point origination fee. "The only people needing loans from Mike Wise and the Silverado boys were those who had fleas on their projects."

Ken Good says he is broke and working as a commodities broker in New York. He still drives a Maserati and is rumored to have assets in the mountain counties of Colorado and in trust accounts and corporations. He maintains a luxury home in Tampa and an apartment in the Soho section of New York.

Walters has filed for bankruptcy and says although he would like to repay the loans he's defaulted on, he's broke. His wife Jackie and two small children live in a $1.9 million estate in Newport Beach, Calif. He has another home in Palm Springs and ocean-front property in Malibu. Both he and his wife drive Mercedes with Colorado license plates. Last year Walters bought a custom Bentley. Walters says he put many of his assets in Jackie's name before the marriage as part of the pre-nuptial agreement.

Neil Bush and his fellow officers and directors saw Silverado blaze and burn, leaving in its ashes a bad taste in the mouth of taxpayers who will have to pay plenty to put out this fire. But so what? It won't matter to members of the wealthy Bush family, who undoubtedly see this shameful episode in American history as just one more example of business as usual.

[END OF QUOTING]

And now don't you just wish I could go right on and wrap this up as in the book? Well, perhaps I shall for it is interesting to see the author's conclusions. Most of you like to read the last chapter of a book before the first part so you are next in line if you get it from me. This is NO NOVEL waiting to be shared in the romantic novel series of Steele or King so don't get confused. This regards your once Head of the CIA, Vice President and then President of the United States of America. He doesn't even know how to count his wealth and simply enjoys the game of "getcha", "gotcha" and "screwya". Wimp? I reckon not, readers.

Would this person be concerned about me, Commander Hatonn? Yes, I would reckon as much—after all they have put me on the 127th floor of their illusionary building with no way up or down (securely). My records can't even be accessed by the now President of the United States—so yes, I guess the man is a bit miffed by my presence. Especially since I NOW HOLD THE TRUMP CARD (NO PUN INTENDED TO THE DONALD) WITH A VALIDLY LEGAL CONTRACT OF DEBT OF THE FED, THE FEDS, IMF AND THE WORLD BANK WHICH HE USED TO BUY HIS WORLD OF BLACK GOLD AND BLACK OPS. Yes, I suppose he is miffed just a bit.

May THE Force be with you. Salu.

Lanto: Shedding Those Self-Imposed Limitations

7/18/98 LANTO, THE SAGE

Greetings, old friend. It is I, Lanto, the Sage. I come within the Light of Creator Source and I serve His Divine Will. I am most commonly associated with the yellow refraction of light. I walked your physical planet many thousands of years ago; my most recognized incarnation was as Gautama Siddhartha "Buddha".

There are as many paths "home" (back to Creator Source) as there are ones who are searching. Enlightenment has many forms and can be found by walking down many a road.

There are, however, common aspects associated with finding a successful path. Discipline, dedication, desire, and faith in one's personal connection to Source are perhaps the most common traits of ones who are successful in finding their way back home.

Many feel their inner heart connection trying to nudge them in a certain direction along their very personal pathway, yet resist the message and argue with self as to what is best in terms of growth. This phenomenon is mostly due to an inner conflict based upon a belief one holds that simply is not true. When one holds as true, for instance, the notion: "One must struggle in order to 'make it' in this world", then there will most certainly be a lot of struggle among the experiences of the one who holds such a belief.

Many of you go through your lives, living out your beliefs, never really taking the time or the effort to truly focus upon what it is that holds you in very limiting habits of thought. There need not be a "struggle" and life need not be "hard".

Life is natural and flowing. It is the one who has the ability to create (YOU!) who places limitations and qualifications upon oneself. YOU summon forth the energies of creation and create (manifest) your desires—be they of a limited or expanded nature.

Many of you believe that you must work hard for anything you want, and if you want more, you must work even harder. This belief limits not only yourselves, but the God-force within.

God is Infinite Abundance and you are a part of His Infinite Being! Many of you also believe that you are not worthy of such gifts of abundance (because of past misdeeds), and there again, you block the flow of your creative potential.

Look deep within and ask yourself questions about what it is that you would most dread. What is it that you worry about the most (in a chronic manner)?

Are you afraid of being "alone" (or lonely)?

Do you worry about having to do the "right" thing all of the time?

Do you worry about what family and friends might think of you if they knew how you truly feel, think, or believe?

Do you worry that you are not "hearing"

our nudges correctly?

Are you worried that you are not doing enough to "win" your "salvation"?

Do you worry that you are not prepared for what "might" be coming?

Ask a close friend, relative, or spouse what they think you worry about the most. Be prepared because the feedback may be quite startling to you.

Caution: Do not argue with these ones; YOU asked for their opinion! Accept the input and, for your own sake, be gracious and thankful. You all worry to some extent.

These things that cause you worry are indicators and clues about which you should take note. If you take time to TRULY examine why you hold onto these things, you will ALWAYS be able to trace the answer back to something false that you hold as truth. These may be a result of childhood experiences or decisions you made while in a state of emotional overwhelm.

Other statements to be aware of are the ones that begin like: "All men are _____." Or similarly: "All women are _____."

These sorts of generalities are ALWAYS based upon false perceptions and these are what limit you and your ability to flow Creative Energy in a conscious and deliberate fashion. In these cases your energy is being directed by the primal ego-self, which is always efforting at avoidance of pain.

All of you have experienced both emotional and physical pain. Usually, as a result of such pain, you will make decisions about the way you will live your lives so as to avoid ever having to face such experiences ever again.

Let us say that you were involved in an intimate relationship with another and, as a result of the interaction, you are left emotionally hurt. (Many of you can relate to this example.) Do you then decide: "Men (or Women) cannot be trusted." Or: "I am unlucky in love." Or: "I will never love another the way I loved that one."

This is but one small example of the general phenomenon that can cause you ones to disconnect, shut down, or restrict yourselves so as to "feel" safe from the "outer" pains of the world. However, the experienced pain NEVER actually comes from the outer world; it ALWAYS comes from within! The net effect is thus a "wall" that you put up to protect yourself from YOURSELF!

Question: What is behind your so carefully constructed "walls" of "security"?

Answer: YOU!

That is, a part of you that you are not wanting to face is walled-off because it causes you to somehow feel great emotional overwhelm. When you put up such walls you are, in essence, disconnecting yourself from Source!

This is the closest thing there is to "death". The more walls you put up, the less alive you will feel!

There are, however, common aspects associated with finding a successful path. Discipline, dedication, desire, and faith in one's personal connection to Source are perhaps the most common traits of ones who are successful in finding their way back home.

This is but one small example of the general phenomenon that can cause you ones to disconnect, shut down, or restrict yourselves so as to "feel" safe from the "outer" pains of the world. However, the experienced pain NEVER actually comes from the outer world; it ALWAYS comes from within! The net effect is thus a "wall" that you put up to protect yourself from YOURSELF!

When ones have near-death experiences, they will often state that their lives “flashed before their eyes” or some such statement. This is mostly due to the fact that the walls come down as you re-emerge into the Infinite Love of Creator.

You will also note that many times these ones will come back a “changed” person. They will have a renewed zest for life and will begin to truly LIVE for perhaps the first time. Why? Again: because their “walls of disconnect” have been lowered and they found the “something” that was missing in life—THEMSELVES!

Does this mean that you must have a “near death” experience in order to achieve this connected state of operation? No! Absolutely not!

All that is needed is a strong desire to free yourself from these self-imposed limitations, a dedication to identifying the lies (and thus seeing truth), and the discipline and faith to persist day by day.

This is also the key to self-healing of any disease. In wholeness and truth, one could easily heal oneself from any illness. It is the fear of death and dying, or of pain and suffering, which creates and perpetuates a continued, limiting state of dis-ease.

When you remove the fears and limiting beliefs, you will naturally overcome any and all unbalanced situations.

Is this easy? It is neither easy, nor is it difficult. It is a challenge that will garner you great rewards and great insights into yourself,

Find your own way. You will never actually be alone, and your Guides will always present you with acceptable clues and confirmations along the way. Just be alert and open enough to recognize them—and don’t deny those indicators which suggest a path you may find distasteful or bumpy with “potholes” in some spots. After all, anything truly worth doing should present as a challenge to your growth!

Shed your perceived limitations and take a major step forward in Understanding and Growth. Fear NOT, for God knows your needs and

He does not harshly judge you. Rather, He HONORS you with all of the Love of His Being; that Love is what keeps you alive! Likewise, be gentle and forgiving with self and each other, for mistakes are an important part of the learning process which are often undervalued (and harshly over-judged by self) for their contributions to your growth.

I am Lanto, the Sage. I have walked the physical path and have found my way back into oneness and wholeness. The rewards go beyond the limitations of words and reach to the depth of the soul. I am honored to serve the Divine Will of Creator, for it is in perfect harmony with that which I find most fulfilling and rewarding.

In Light and Love for you ALL, thank you for your participation in this interchange of growth and challenge.

Salu!

Again: The paths back to wholeness (oneness with Creator) are infinite and you each will walk same in your own way and in your own time.

others, and the magnificent perfection of God’s thinking.

Again: The paths back to wholeness (oneness with Creator) are infinite and you each will walk same in your own way and in your own time.

I cannot stress enough that the most common traits of those who have successfully traversed this necessary path of “en-Lightenment” are: A strong desire for wholeness; a dedication to persist in carrying out that desire; a discipline of self to focus upon the desire despite any and all distractions (they will be many!); and faith that there is indeed “LIGHT” at the end of the “tunnel”.

Another clue is that the answers come FROM WITHIN, for you are each unique, and in your uniqueness come very diverse perceptions and realizations. What works for one person as a pathway may not work at all for YOU.

Wisdom Of The Rays: The Masters Teach

ABOUT THE BOOK

This large collection (over 400 pages + 4 color photos) of popular spiritual writings from the CONTACT newspaper includes a detailed introduction to the 14 Higher Authors, plus several commentaries unique to the purpose of this volume.

The expansive yet compassionate nature of the messages delivered in WISDOM OF THE RAYS: The Masters Teach not only challenges those already firmly committed upon the spiritual path, but also provides a serious first step to help ones who are just awakening to (and inquiring about) the magnificent Spiritual Transformation now sensed by many to be in progress upon this planet.

FROM THE BACK COVER

“Our Elder Brothers from the Higher Realms of Creation are attempting to communicate with ALL of us at this time. Why? Take a look around you. The old ways of doing things aren’t working. Our planet is entering a time of massive, turbulent change and renewal. To put it bluntly: we NEED help! And that’s where this book comes into the picture. Yes, eventually ‘the Phoenix will arise from the ashes’ after this Great Cleansing process, but the ride could be quite a bumpy one, especially for those ill-prepared for what is to happen.

“Just how we choose to deal with such change is THE question each of us must confront. Yet confusion swirls everywhere upon Earth at this time. And restless searchers cry out for that which may help them cope with these truly challenging times ahead. Thus these messages courtesy of our most loving Elder Brothers from the Higher Realms of Creation who are but further along the same spiritual path we all must eventually walk.”

TELEPHONE

805-822-0202

As an adjunct to CONTACT, the Telephone Hotline keeps you as informed as possible on current events and other important information that needs to get to our subscribers before our publishing date.

The message machine will answer after 2 rings if there are any new messages for that day, and after 4 rings if not. Thus daily callers can hang up after 2 rings and save toll charges if no new message has been recorded. If the Hotline does not answer your call, then that means there is currently no Hotline message.
